Justices rap Lincoln Green plan

by BILL HILL

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Several arguments in favor of the Lincoln Green housing project proposed for Arlington Heights by the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., Chicago, were openly disputed by U.S. Supreme Court justices Wednesday as final testimony on the low-income housing proposal was heard.

At one point, Justice Thurgood Marshall, the only black on the court, asked: "Does every community in this country have to have low-cost housing? Why does Arlington Heights have to have it?"

A final ruling in the 5-year-old case is not expected for at least 10 weeks.

The case was appealed to the Supreme Court a year ago after the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals ruled that the village's refusal in 1971 to rezone a 15-acre parcel southeast of St. Viator High School for the housing project had racially discriminatory effects and, therefore, violated the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment.

The Supreme Court, however, questioned Wednesday why the appellate court ruled in favor of MHDC on those grounds, but made no mention in its ruling of MHDC's arguments that the village also violated the Fair Housing Act of 1968 by not rezoning the Viatorian property.

At a glance . . .

A chronology of the Village of Arlington Heights vs. Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. housing case:

- Sept. 28, 1971 — Arlington eHights Village Board rejects MHDC petition for rezoning of 15-acre site southeast of St. Viator High School.
- Feb. 22, 1974 — U.S. District Court rules that MHDC failed to prove racial discrimination in the zoning refusal.
- June 10, 1975 — 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals overturns district court decision, ruling that the village's refusal to rezone the Viatorian site has racially discriminatory effects.
- Dec. 15, 1975 — U.S. Supreme Court agrees to review case.
- Oct. 13, 1976 — U.S. Supreme Court hears oral arguments in case.

"THE LOGICAL inference is that if they passed by the statutory interests to the constitutional issues, that they rejected your statutory grounds," said Justice Potter Stewart to F. Willis Caruso, MHDC's attorney. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger expressed agreement with Stewart's conclusion, but Caruso disagreed.

"I don't feel they did. I cannot explain what was in the minds of the court of appeals, but I feel the court can find a violation of the 1968 Fair Housing laws," Caruso said.

In marked contrast to the heavy scrutiny given to Caruso's arguments in favor of the Lincoln Green proposal, the justices rarely questioned Jack M. Siegel, the village's attorney, except to request clarifications or background information.

The only extended questioning of Siegel concerned his argument that the MHDC lacked the proper standing to challenge the village in court because its purchase of the Viatorian property was conditional on getting the land rezoned and obtaining federal financing.

ILLINOIS LAW requires that a contract purchaser whose contract is conditioned on rezoning has no standing to challenge the validity of a zoning ordinance, Siegel said.

Siegel asked the court to overturn the decision issued by the appellate court in June 1975, saying the case is a "garden-variety" zoning issue.

"We believe a federal court should not sit as a super zoning board. We feel the court of appeals ruled that low-income people should have special privileges; but we don't feel there's anything in the 14th Amendment giving such privileges," Siegel said.

"The village's position in this matter is very simple. The fact that the (village's) zoning ordinance may have a greater impact on poor people does not invalidate it or constitute a violation of the 14th Amendment," he said.

DURING HIS 30-minute appearance before the court, Caruso argued that Arlington Heights has applied its zoning ordinance inconsistently. Requests for multi-family zoning are approved "only after looking at the developer and what type of people he'll bring in," he said.

The justices repeatedly interrupted Caruso with the loudest disagreement coming from Marshall.

One objection came when Caruso began to describe the 190-unit Lincoln Green project as "a good-looking development" and compatible with the residential area surrounding the proposed site on Euclid Avenue and Drury Lane.

Marshall cited a 1926 decision entitled Euclid vs. Amber Realty Co., saying, "Euclid said that once a zoning law is passed that's it. You talk about it being a nice development. Euclid says that means nothing."

CARUSO RESPONDED that the Euclid case limits zoning powers of municipalities if greater public needs are shown.

Following the one-hour hearing, Siegel and Caruso agreed that the more intense questioning of Caruso does not provide a good indication of how the court will eventually rule.

Siegel said it was "quite significant" that the justices were concerned about the court of appeals not basing its ruling on Caruso's arguments that the village had violated the Fair Housing Act of 1968.

"I hope they acknowledge the fact both the trial court and the court of appeals rejected the statutory arguments and reverse the ruling," he said.

Caruso said he was surprised the justices did not ask Siegel more questions.

"But we presented issues that are relatively new. His (Siegel's) argument didn't get into those new issues. He wasn't urging an interpretation as we were," Caruso said.

Tunnel blast backfires; planning goes up in smoke

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

When the last rock fell in its place Wednesday afternoon, construction workers and Metropolitan Sanitary District engineers shook their heads in disbelief.

The dynamite had been tested and retested. For two months the men have been exploding dynamite at the bottom of a deep tunnel sewer shaft at Weller Lane and Central Road in Mount Prospect. For 14 hours before Wednesday's blast, they worked to make sure nothing would go wrong. Each of the 13 previous blasts had gone smoothly.

But at 3:15 p.m., as the dynamite was detonated, it backfired.

Just seconds after a 10-horn warning blast was sounded, the ground trembled, there was a loud explosion and the tunnel shaft erupted like a volcano.

NORMALLY, THE explosion is confined within the tunnel and debris is not strewn over the entire construction site, MSD officials said.

However, contractors and the MSD now is investigating why a routine dynamite blast went haywire, sending rocks and wooded slats flying more than 200 feet from the shaft.

Some construction workers and a Herald photographer observing the blast were struck by falling debris. However, no serious injuries were reported.

Damage was done to a van belonging to Healy-Ball Greenfield Construction, McCook, when a rock smashed through the roof of the vehicle. Healy-Ball Greenfield is the contractor responsible for constructing 13 deep tunnel shafts in the village requiring dynamite work.

"I'm going to have a doozy of a headache tonight," quipped Safety Engineer Kenneth Gilbert after being hit in the head with a rock while hovering over a Herald photographer caught in the middle of the showering debris.

A HUSH CAME over the construction site and the smell of sulphur from the exploded dynamite filled the air.

"That shouldn't have happened." MSD Assistant Chief Engineer Robert Ansani said. "We're going to try to find out what it was."

Despite the 14 hours of preparation — from drilling to the actual explosion — Ansani and the workers agreed something was not checked property.

What went wrong?

ANSANI SAID the 153-foot deep tunnel shaft may have blown because the explosison occurred under water. Construction workers at the site said perhaps the steel-meshed mat used to cover the shaft was not fastened securely.

Also before each blast, the electric charges and circuits that activate the dynamite are tested repeatedly.

Dynamite blasts will occur periodically through 1979 when the MSD's deep tunnel project should be complete. A total of 15 tunnel shafts are under construction in Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

The tunnel eventually will collect and store sewer and storm water and send it on the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant at Oakton Street and Ill. Rte. 83.

Despite complaints from residents disturbed by noise and foundation cracks caused by the blasting, Ansani said the deep tunnel project is the only one of its kind in the United States.

Ford to get swine-flu inoculation today

by United Press International

President Ford said Wednesday he will receive a swine flu shot despite escalating reports of deaths among elderly recipients that have jolted his administration's $135 million program aimed at averting a flu epidemic like the 1918-1919 outbreak in which about 20 million persons died worldwide.

Ford, campaigning in New York, said he will receive his shot in Washington today and urged fellow Americans to do the same.

"I strongly believe that it's necessary for every one of 215 million Americans, and to show my faith in it I'm going to do it myself," Ford said.

FORD SAID HE had talked with persons who discussed the situation with experts. "There is no evidence as of the time I talked to them this morning that there is any connection between anything wrong with the vaccine and the unfortunate tragedies that happened," he said.

Latest figures indicated at least 25 persons, mostly elderly, died soon after inoculations and health officials in 9 states have suspended immunization programs.

The federal Center for Disease Control officials in Atlanta expressed concern because there were reports from across the country of swine flu clinics being open and nobody showing up.

"It's easy to be concerned now, but the problem is next winter when people are dying from influenza," said Philadelphia's acting city Health Comr. Lewis Polk summing up the situation. "Then we will all feel very sad."

The Ford administration fought hard for the swine flu program following the discovery of the new virus last winter among soldiers at Fort Dix, N.J. One soldier died.

Meanwhile, the Allegheny County Health Dept. in Pittsburgh, where the first post-inoculation deaths were reported earlier this week, said officials would announce at a press conference at 10 a.m. today whether they will reopen 13 clinics closed because of three local fatalities.

A spokesman for the disease control center said an investigation in Pittsburgh showed there was nothing wrong with the swine flu vaccine and there was no association between the vaccine and the deaths.

"There is no evidence that any of these deaths were caused by the vaccine," said Dr. J. Donald Millar, director of the center's state services bureau.

In Illinois, Public Health Director Joyce Lashof ordered the resumption of the immunization program.

Downstate immunizations were halted Tuesday after reports of deaths in other states. The Chicago immunization program continued without delay.

MOST OF THE victims nationwide died of heart attacks, which field studies in Pittsburgh showed could have been triggered by stress.

More than one lot of vaccine was involved in the deaths, but the center's officials did not say which companies besides Parke Davis & Co., of Detroit, Mich., manufactured the serum.

In Bar County, Fla., only a dozen persons showed up for morning shots after hundreds turned out the two previous days. Philadelphia health officials also reported a dropoff.

Health officials in Allegheny County, Pa. (Pittsburgh), Michigan, Alaska, Maine, New Mexico, Texas, Wisconsin and counties in West Virginia and North Carolina halted or continued suspensions of their programs. Vermont and Louisiana programs have resumed.

Melindez shooting accidental: coroner

A Cook County Coroner's inquest Wednesday has ruled that the fatal shooting Aug. 5 of a Mount Prospect girl was accidental. Diana Melindez, 16, of 1822 Hopi St., was walking past the door to her brother's bedroom when she was struck in the head by a single bullet. Her brother, Lawrence Melindez, testified he was cleaning and reloading a .22 caliber bolt action rifle when the gun discharged, killing the girl, police said. Miss Melindez was a sophomore at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

Police chief seeks reinstatement

Former Wheeling Police Chief Peter Guttilla, 59, will renew his bid to be reinstated as village police chief. Guttilla's attorney William Bochte said Wednesday his client will file suit within 30 days. The attorney said the decision to reopen the case was made after Cook County Circuit Court Judge George Leighton, who dismissed Guttilla's suit in May, said he "now has precedent to grant relief." Wheeling Village Atty. John Burke said Leighton believes a recent decision requiring Skokie to rehire policemen fired during a 1975 strike might pertain to Guttilla's plea. Guttilla contends he was fired in January without cause.

Dist 23 contract talks to resume

Teacher contract negotiations, broken off for more than a month, will resume Monday in Prospect Heights Dist. 23. Supt. Edward Grodsky said at a board of education meeting Wednesday night that the teachers union contacted the board Monday to resume negotiations. Contract talks broke off last month when the union said the board was unwilling to compromise on the method of giving teachers raises. The union is asking that the present merit system be replaced with a standard salary schedule. The board wants to maintain the merit pay system.

GOP in court on ballot case

The Cook County Republican Party will present its arguments Friday in federal court in an effort to win the top position on the November election ballot and change the rules for use of the punch-card voting system that will be used in the suburbs. U.S. District Court Judge Frank McGarr Wednesday said he will hear arguments on the suit against the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners and the Cook County Clerk.

Hearing set in illegal sale of drug

Two Northwest suburban men, arrested for illegally manufacturing and selling drugs, will appear in Cook County Circuit Court Friday. Richard Van Note, 38, of 456 Woodfield Ln., Roselle, and Fred M. Lozo, 31, of 1434 Quaker Ln., Wheeling, were arrested Aug. 9 by Chicago police in connection with the illegal manufacturing and selling of the drug quaalude at Chemtronics, a Schaumburg business.

The two men were arrested after an undercover Chicago policeman purchased 4,000 grams of quaalude worth $9,000 from Van Note. The sale took place at the Rob Roy Country Club in Prospect Heights. About $30,000 worth of drugs were recovered from Chemtronics, 1118 Lunt Ave.

U.S. jet plows path of death in Bolivia

SANTA CRUZ, Bolivia (UPI) — A Miami-based Boeing 707 jet cargo plane crashed and burned on takeoff Wednesday, plowing through a school, a soccer field and a crowd lined up outside a store. Bolivian authorities put the death toll at 80 to 100 persons, including the three-man American crew.

By nightfall, the morgue at the city hospital had 65 bodies, most of them burned beyond recognition. There were two more dead at another hospital and more bodies at the site of the crash.

The Boeing 707 crashed about 200 yards from the end of the runway at El Trompillo airport. It destroyed a school which had just emptied for the lunch break, hit a line of people waiting to buy kerosene and exploded on a soccer field.

Bolivian authorities said many of the dead were children outside the store or on the soccer field. The exact number of fatalities was uncertain as workers dug through the rubble in search of bodies.

Personnel in the airport control tower at Santa Cruz, 400 miles southeast of the capital city of La Paz, said they watched the plane take off, have trouble gaining altitude and fall to the ground at 12:35 p.m. CDT. There was no communication from the crew to indicate why they had difficulties, they said.

The plane was owned by Jet Power Inc., of Miami and was leased to Lloyd Aero Boliviano, which flies cargo between Florida and Bolivia, through Rodel Enterprises of Miami.

Parts of the aircraft could be seen in the stands of the soccer field where a local junior soccer team was practicing at the time of the crash.

The Civil Aeronautic Board in Bolivia said it was investigating the accident.

Bolivian president Gen. Hugo Banzer flew to Santa Cruz shortly after learning of the crash to bring his personal assistance to the victims and their families.

The crew of the plane was identified tentatively as pilot Charles Baldwin, co-pilot Lee March and engineer Leslie Bennett. There was no further identification of the men, but a spokesman for Jet Power told a Miami radio station that all three were from the Miami area.

"The plane smashed through 300 yards of housing, crashed into a school and a hospital," one observer said. "The fuel tanks exploded, setting off fires over a wide area and knocking down telephone poles and power lines."

The jet sliced into the Placido Molina school and careened into nearby houses, setting a number of fires when its fuel burst into flames. A number of children were playing soccer in the school yard when the flaming debris struck.

Nearby, a long line of people was waiting to buy kerosene. The plane slashed across the schoolyard and hit them before it wound up in front of the swimming pool at the William Bendeck football stadium a few hundred yards from the airport.

Santa Cruz, a city of 200,000 persons is an important trade center for sugar cane, coffee, tobacco and rice.

Diplomats convinced of purge

Troops on Peking's universities

HONG KONG (UPI) — Troops have moved onto the campuses of Peking's two major universities, and leftist and moderate students clashed at one of the schools, sources in Pekin said Wednesday.

Diplomats contacted by telephone from Hong Kong, meantime, said they were convinced a purge has been carried out against Mao Tse-tung's widow, Chiang Ching, and other radical elements in the Communist party's ultraleftist "Shanghai Mafia."

Madame Mao and three other Politburo members reportedly have been under arrest for nearly a week, and the diplomats said Wednesday the purge apparently has been extended against other radical figures.

Diplomatic analysts said Hua Kuo-feng, the new chairman of the Communist party and thus the most powerful figure in the nation of 800 million persons, is working to sweep radicals out of positions of influence, and he is expected to steer a pragmatic policy course for China along the lines charted by the late Premier Chou En-lai.

Diplomatic sources in Peking said a high-level meeting, possibly a plenary session of the party central committee, was going on in the city. A Communist official reportedly said a day earlier the central committee intends to publish a communique on changes in the party leadership.

Tsinghua and Peking universities in the capital are a center of radical activity in the capital. Peking sources said an unknown number of troops were stationed at both schools, but they were unable to provide details of what was going on inside the institutions.

Tsinghua university was the headquarters for radicals and ousted former Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, Chou En-Lai's protege, from his post early in April, three months after Chou's death.

A Peking resident told UPI leftist and moderate students fought at Peking University. Details of the clash were not available since the campus is closed to outsiders.

Ford signs revenue sharing measure

President Ford, standing on the steps of Yonkers City Hall, signed a $25.6 billion revenue sharing bill Wednesday and said he'd rather have communities decide how to spend money than Washington bureaucrats. Ford softened his partisan tone, but still managed to twit Democrat Jimmy Carter for wanting to earmark revnue sharing money to cities, and not states. The legislation extends the present revenue sharing program through September, 1980, with stronger civil rights provisions and new opportunities for local citizens to have a say in how the money is spent. Funds will go to 39,000 communities.

Space shuttle may move Skylab's orbit

The Skylab space station abandoned in orbit in 1974 may be pushed into a higher "preservation" orbit in 1980 by space shuttle astronauts under a plan being considered by the space agency. The mission would serve as a realistic test for the new shuttle and place the Skylab in an orbit where it would be available for some later use. Melvyn Savage, director of development in the advanced programs office, said the big uncertainty now is whether the 84-ton Skylab will still be in orbit by the time space shuttle pilots can reach it.

Thai leaders fear counter-coup

Thailand's military rulers promised Wednesday to restore democracy "in a few years" but admitted the possibility of a counter-coup attempt and imposed a curfew on the capital. "Martial law will be enforced until the situation is satisfactory to us," Gen. Kriangsak Chamanand, secretary general of the ruling National Administrative Reform Council said at a news conference Wednesday. Warnings were issued late Tuesday and all day Wednesday by the official Radio Thailand against those who might try to take power by force from the original coup leaders who took over the country one week ago.

Dean links Ford to Watergate role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Dean said Wednesday that Gerald Ford, while House Republican leader, was contacted by the White House in 1972 on blocking the first congressional Watergate investigation. Ford has testified that he recalled no such discussions.

Shortly after Dean made his statement, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., told reporters that special prosecutor Charles Ruff indicated he will decide by the end of this week whether to investigate Ford's role in heading off a 1973 Watergate inquiry by the House Banking Committee..

Dean, the former Nixon aide whose testimony to the Senate Watergate committee helped lead to Nixon's resignation as president, said on NBC-TV's Today show that Richard Cook of Nixon's staff talked with Ford more than a half dozen times about using his influence to stave off the investigation.

Dean said Ford at one point indicated he would tell Republican members of the banking committee "what they should do on the day of the vote" when the panel decided whether to look into the Watergate burglary.

Cook denied Dean's allegations, accusing him of "vicious lies and clever distortions."

"There is no question in my mind that the President told the truth," said Cook, now employed by an aircraft company. He said he did not contact Ford "despite John Dean's repeated and frantic requests" that he do so.

Ford testified at hearings on his confirmation as vice president in 1973 that "to the best of my recollection" he did not talk with any of Nixon's staff about blocking the inquiry.

Dean said, "Cook was the man who did the leg work and dealt with Mr. Ford and the other members of the committee . . .

"I can recall Dick (Cook) coming back and telling, for example, how Jerry was going to call a meeting of the minority members . . . and really tell them what they should do on the day of the vote and how they should hold together and things of this nature."

Asked if that meant the Republicans were to try blocking the hearings, Dean replied: "That's correct."

The Banking Committee started an investigation of Watergate, but it was thwarted in October, 1972, when the panel voted 20 to 15 not to subpoena witnesses.

Conyers, who demanded last week that the special prosecutor look into Ford's role, said Ruff told him Tuesday he probably would decide one way or the other by week's end.

Conyers told a news conference the questions can be cleared up if Ruff will listen to about 200 White House tapes covering the period from September, 1972 through May, 1973 which have not been heard or transcribed.

"Somebody must listen to those tapes before Nov. 2," election day, Conyers said. And he said he will confer with Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., of the House Judiciary Committee on the possibility of that panel looking into the matter.

Carter's free Lockheed trip cited

by United Press International

Columnist Jack Anderson, reported Wednesday that Jimmy Carter accepted a three-week tour of Latin America from the Lockheed Corp, when he was Georgia governor. Anderson, on his radio show on the Mutual Broadcasting System, cited a letter in which he said Carter promised to promote the corporation's C130 airplane.

A Carter spokesman was quoted by Anderson as saying that the Democrat had done no favor in exchange for the expense paid trip. Since the aircraft was made in Marrietta, Ga., the then-governor felt it was proper to push Georgia products.

According to the letter quoted by Anderson, Carter promised to work "privately and publicly" to promote the firm's C130.

President Ford, meantime, hoping to inject some fire into his campaign, accused Carter of trying to "have it both ways" on campaign issues and said he would not "let him do it."

Trying to project an aggressive image in the final three weeks before the election, Ford stumped in New York City's suburbs and took slaps at what he claimed were Carter's inconsistencies.

"We have heard all four sides of the tax issue — three of them from Jimmy Carter," Ford said on the steps of city hall in White Plaines, N.Y. "The liveliest debate is between Jimmy Carter and Jimmy Carter."

Saying Carter has complained that U.S. military might is weak, while calling for a smaller defense budget, Ford said, "He can't have it both ways, and we're not going to let him do it."

Ford was joined on the trip by the state's two senators, James Buckley and Jacob Javits, GOP State Chairman Richard Rosenbaum, and former Gov. Malcolm Wilson.

Archeologists find Tut's Grandmummy

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — After almost 80 years of detective work, archeologists have finally found the grand-mummy of crusty old King Tut.

University of Michigan scientists announced Wednesday they have identified the remains of Queen Tiy originally uncovered in Egypt's Valley of the Kings in 1898.

The queen, who played a major role in shaping ancient Egypt's society, lived about 1300 B.C. She was the grandmother of King Tutankhamen, whose mummified remains were discovered in 1922 in the same area.

Dr. James E. Harris, who headed the team that identified the mummy in Cairo, said Queen Tiy is considered the missing link in the royal Egyptian lineage.

She was the mother of King Akenaten, the first pharoah to adopt monotheism by establishing sun worship as the official religion.

Her identification was determined after years of classic investigation. Her body was found in a tomb with other Egyptian royalty in 1898, but grave robbers had stripped all identification.

Using sophisticated computer analysis, scientists eliminated all other possibilities among numerous unidentified mummies in Egypt to verify the queen's identity.

AFTER ALMOST 80 years of detective work, archeologists have found the Grand Mummy of crusty old King Tut. University of Michigan scientists announced they have identified the remains of Queen Tiy, left, originally uncovered in 1898. U-M research assistant Susan Walker, right, clips off hair sample from the mummy. Observing is an Egyptian inspector.

CBS chiefs to step aside in shakeup at network

People

• Arthur R. Taylor resigned Wednesday as president of CBS and chairman William S. Paley said he would step aside as chief executive officer in a shakeup at the network, which has fallen behind ABC and NBC in the television ratings. Paley plans to step down next April following the company's shareholder's meeting. CBS network programming recently suffered setbacks in the Nielsen ratings, which indirectly determine advertising rates and therefore corporate income.

• Country Music Entertainer of the Year Mel Tillis says he is filing complaints with the Federal Communications Commission against NBC and CBS for not running four dog food commercials because they felt Tillis' stuttering might be "offensive." CBS and NBC decided Tuesday not to run the 30-second Purina Dog Chow spots — NBC because of "taste considerations" and CBS saying the stuttering "may prove offensive to our viewers." Said Tillis: "If this isn't discrimination, I don't know what is. I thought there was an all-out effort in thic country to hire the handicapped."

• Mayor Charles B. Wheeler Jr. of Kansas City, Mo. has learned even the boss can have his water shut off if he doesn't pay his bill on time. The Wheeler home was without water for six hours Monday because the mayor had forgotten to pay his bill for $66.76. It was past due for 30 days. Wheeler said he mailed a check for the bill about the same time a worker appeared to turn off the water.

• Entertainer Jerry Lee Lewis, who was charged in a shooting incident at his home Sept. 28, was arrested again Tuesday night on disorderly conduct charges. Police Chief Herbert Goforth said Lewis was arrested at his Collierville, Tenn. home on charges stemming from an incident involving a neighbor. Goforth said an investigation was under way.

• Lillian Gish, star of the early years of motion pictures, will celebrate her 80th birthday today. She was born in Springfield, Ohio, on Nov. 14, 1896.

Metropolitan briefs

Incidents prompt curfew in Zion

Zion Mayor Milt Jensen Wednesday imposed a 7 p.m. curfew on all persons under 18 as a result of recent incidents of rock throwing. "We have come to the end of our rope," Jensen said. "We will tolerate absolutely no more of it." The curfew, effective immediately, will last indefinitely, Jensen said. City officials said there were several incidents of rock throwing Tuesday night — four police squad cars were hit, a picture window in a private home was struck and rocks were thrown at motorists in some sections of the city.

Canvassed voters can appeal

Cook County election department officials said Wednesday anyone who believes they were taken off voter registration roles unfairly during last week's election canvass and were unable to appeal Monday or Tuesday of this week — should call the county election office. A spokesman for County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper said "We'll do what we can to help people who are in the right. We'll try to be reasonable." Two Rolling Meadows aldermen have called for an investigation of the canvass which took place Oct. 5.

$1.2 billion school budget OKd

The Chicago Board of Education Wednesday approved a 1976-77 budget of $1.2 billion with a $115.3 million deficit. The proposal, submitted by Chicago school superintendent Joseph P. Hannon, is some $33 million below this year's budget. The vote to approve the budget was 7-4 with six votes needed. Three of those voting against the budget said they weren't satisifed $145.5 million in state funds aimed at poverty-level school children and included in the budget will actually reach them.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne has ruled the city doesn't have to pay any part of the early-closing penalty, a ruling now being appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court. If Dunne's decision is upheld, the deficit would be reduced further. Most of the budget goes for teachers' salaries. School repairs account for $62.4 million and $34 million is for new schools.

Six barred from Medicaid

The Illinois Dept. of Public Aid announced Wednesday that six Chicago-area medical providers, including four eye-care providers, have been removed from the state's Medicaid program. The six new terminations bring to 31 the number of health care providers barred from the Medicaid program this year. The department said the providers were suspended for either submitting bills for work not done or for keeping inadequate records. The six are Dr. Norman Brotman, Chcago, an optomitrist; Ford Optical Co. of Northfield; Romeo and Lolita Bernales, Chicago, who are associated with the Bernales Optical Co.; Crown Optical, Chicago; Dr. Ansuya Amin, a Chicago physician, and General Medical Laboratory, Chicago.

Hospital scrapes up premium

Provident Hospital scraped up enough money to pay its malpractice insurance Wednesday, staving off closing until at least Nov. 1 when the next premium is due. A hospital spokesman said this month's payment was drawn from "money on hand" and from several fund-raisers held during the past month in efforts to save the South Side hospital from shutting down. Provident's financial administrator, John Ash, said the remaining premium will be paid at a rate of $88,937 for each of the next nine months to the California-based Argonaut Insurance Co.

Court hopefuls called qualified

The Chicago Council of Lawyers Wednesday said it has found all four men running for the Illinois Supreme Court qualified. There are two Democrats and two Republicans seeking two openings on the high court. The Democrats are James A. Dooley, a personal injury lawyer, and William J. Clark, a former Illinois attorney general. The Republicans are Reginald Holzer, a judge on the Cook County Circuit Court, and Lawrence Pusateri, former president of the Illinois State Bar Association. The Chicago Council of Lawyers has 1,100 members.

Banks being bilked through computers

The Illinois Bureau of Investigation said Wednesday it has received tips that organized crime is developing sophisticated methods of stealing money from large financial institutions through use of computers. Bureau Director Robert Bullock said the crime syndicate already has scored financial hits through computer operations more than once. Bullock said one method already used by the syndicate was to open a bank account, learn the institution's computer code with the help of an insider, then use portable computer equipment to transfer money into the account. The money is withdrawn from the bank before the transfer is even discovered by bank officials. "Banks are very reluctant to publicize the fact that they have had this occur for obvious reasons," Bullock said. "They don't want their shareholders to be concerned about the security in their system."

Hoge to moderate VP debates

Jim Hoge, editor of the Chicago Sun Times, will serve as moderator for the vice presidential debate Friday in Houston, the League of Women Voters said Wednesday. The 75-minute debate between Democrat Walter Mondale and Republican Robert Dole will begin at 8:30 p.m. Members of the panel directing questions at the candidates will be Hal Bruno, political correspondent for Newsweek; Marilyn Berger, White House correspondant for NBC News; and Walter Mears, political reporter for the Associated Press.

TWA found to be discriminatory

A federal judge ruled Wednesday Trans World Airlines violated the civil rights of 440 stewardesses it refused to rehire after they became mothers. U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr issued his finding in Chicago, without a written opinion but said one will follow later. McGarr said he also will rule later on the stewardesses' request for back pay. Their suit charged discrimination in violation of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. TWA ended its no-motherhood policy in 1970. McGarr already has ruled American Airlines violated the civil rights of 300 of its stewardesses because of a similar policy.

Radioactive fallout skips here

Radioactive fallout from a Sept. 26 Chinese atomic bomb explosion apparently has bypassed Illinois, the Illinois Dept. of Public Health said Wednesday. Gary Wright, chief of the department's Division of Nuclear Safety, reported that Illinois air, water and milk samples collected from Sept. 26 through Oct. 8 show no indication of fallout contamination.

Gifted program revamped

A revamped education program for the gifted emphasizing the training of Prospect Heights Dist. 23 teachers, was approved Wednesday night by the board of education.

"It's important that we develop an awareness in the district, in the teaching staff and in the administration, of the needs of our gifted children," said Assistant Supt. Gerald McGovern, who has called the teachers "our major resource" in a program for the gifted.

The program calls for:

- After-school workshops for teachers interested in gifted education. The workshops will teach faculty members how to identify gifted children and suggest activities and materials for them.
- Creation of a district education committee for the gifted which includes parents as members. Committee members would receive some training in education for the gifted.
- Giving limited traning to district administrators and making presentations to the district's PTAs and PTOs.
- Revitalizing the Independent Learning Project at the junior high level which allows students to work on special interests at their own initiative.
- Developing a program for the gifted for 1977-78 for which state money could be received.

Cost of the program will be $825, McGovern said. The 1976-77 budget can accommodate that cost since money for the teacher workshops, the largest cost, is included in the budget, he said.

The board asked the administration to draw up a program that would maintain past services for the gifted in 1976-77 after the board eliminated a part-time education coordinator for the gifted from the budget to save $5,000.

Finances top issue at Dist. 59 unit plan hearing

Proponents and opponents of the proposed Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area unit district differed Wednesday night over the financial benefit the proposal would have on High School Dist. 214.

The unit district proposal would combine Dist. 59 schools and Forest View and Elk Grove High Schools under one school board and administration. Currently Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the Dist. 214 area.

Chester T. Knight of the Illinois School Consulting Service testified at Wednesday's hearing that formation of the Dist. 59 area unit school district would have a minimal financial impact on Dist. 214.

HE SAID THAT while Dist. 214 would lose about 42 per cent of its assessed valuation, it would receive more state aid that would make up for the loss in assessed valuation.

Knight said the higher assessed valuation per pupil a district has, the less state aid it receives.

Dist. 214 attorney Gerald Brooks objected to Knight's statement, saying they are based on the assumption the district will receive full state funding. The district has not received full funding from the state for two years, Brooks said.

"The last full funding by the legislature was in 1974, so his (Knight's) figures are just speculation based on what would happen if there were full funding," Brooks said. "On this he bases his conclusion that 214 will be only minimally hurt even though it is losing 42 per cent of its assessed valuation and has less to operate six high schools."

THE NEXT UNIT district hearing is set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

After officials from Dist. 214 and Dist. 59 call all of their witnesses, a hearing will be scheduled so interested residents may testify, County School Supt. Richard Martwick said Wednesday night.

"Community residents will be heard at a time in the future devoted especially to them," he said. Martwick asked that persons wishing to testify submit written testimony to him in advance of the meeting. Rules on speakers' time limits will be announced later, Martwick said.

After all interested parties have been heard, Martwick will make a recommendation on the petitions request to State School Supt. Joseph Cronin.

Cronin will decide whether there will be a referendum on the issue. If an election is held, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

Women hospitalized after mishap

Two Arlington Heights women were admitted to an area hospital after cars they were riding in crashed at a major intersection in the village, police reported Wednesday.

Driver Sandra A. Nelson, 23, of 1250 S. Highland Ave., suffered possible internal injuries after a car driven by Linda M. Garman, 18, of 1520 N. Ridge Ave., turned into the path of her auto at Algonquin and Arlington Heights roads at 9:24 p.m. Tuesday, police said.

Ms. Garman reportedly suffered cuts, bruises and a possible concussion. She and Ms. Nelson were admitted for observation at Northwest Community Hospital, where they were reported in good condition Wednesday night.

Kathleen C. Spiekerman, 18, of 403 S. Ridge Ave., Arlington Heights, a passenger in Ms. Garman's car, suffered a bruised shoulder and a cut lip, police said. Ms. Spiekerman reportedly was treated at Northwest Community and released.

How about you—will you get a flu shot?

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Esther Sove finally made up her mind Wednesday.

For months, the 71-year-old Elk Grove Village resident had been wondering whether to get inoculated for swine flu.

Part of her kept remembering 1918 and an unbearable train trip during the last major outbreak of the disease. Another part kept reminding her that she had survived that outbreak and that she seemed to have some inexplicable immunity to influenzas of any sort.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, she stopped pulling herself apart.

That was when she read in the papers and heard on television that three elderly persons in Pittsburgh — and then three more in different parts of the country — died shortly after receiving the shots.

That's all Mrs. Sove needed to hear.

"I was half and half before, but now I'm definitely not going," she says.

BUT SHE HAD delayed her decision because she can remember the horror of the 1918 outbreak.

In 58 years, she has been unable to shake the picture of a two-hour train ride out of her mind.

An immigrant from Norway, Mrs. Sove, then 13, and her mother were attending a convention of the International Correspondents Club in Fredrikshald, Sweden, an old fort town on the Swedish-Norwegian border.

The convention, attended by members from all Scandinavian countries, was to last four days.

BUT ON THE second day, just before a huge dance was to begin, a club official spoke to the members.

They would have to pack immediately to leave, he told them. There was an outbreak of influenza.

The hospital in Fredrikshald was full; those who were strong enough to return home were urged to do so and to go to hospitals there.

Mrs. Sove and her mother had not contracted the disease, but felt it best to follow the official's advice and boarded a train for Oslo.

THEY WERE ABOUT the only passengers who weren't ill with the flu. Most had been overcome by high fevers.

"It was so hot in that train, I thought I'd collapse from the heat," Mrs. Sove recalls.

Instead, she and her mother tended the sick. A conductor told them to try to stay as far away from the victims as possible, or there would be no way they could avoid coming down with the disease.

"It was smelling of castor oil all over, and everyone, they were feverish," Mrs. Sove says. "My mother and I went and put damp cloths on their heads."

AFTER ARRIVING in Oslo, they spent most of the summer in the house, trying to avoid contact with people who might have the disease.

"My mother was sure that we would get it after the train ride with all those flu people," she says.

But the summer came and went and the epidemic came and went. Her friends were stricken, many were hospitalized and some died. But neither she nor her relatives came down with the flu.

Looking back, she says she has no way of knowing if the convention outbreak was the first she had heard of the disease. But it wasn't well-reported at the time, and television and radio weren't around to bring news of the epidemic to people quickly.

THE TOLL, she says, apparently was as great in the United States as in Europe.

After she immigrated in 1926, relatives told her stories of horse-drawn ambulances continuously passing each other.

" 'They couldn't bury them quick enough,' is what my aunt said," Mrs. Sove recalls.

Those memories make it a little difficult to face the possibility of a new epidemic without the help of the swine flu vaccine. But Mrs. Sove says she'll do just that, and she expects that many of her friends will do the same.

EVEN BEFORE the three senior citizens died in Pittsburgh, she says, a member of the bridge club said "she'd rather take the flu."

Wednesday's news "will probably add to the problems," she says.

"There's a lot of mixed feelings about it," Mrs. Sove says. "If it saves some lives, I think it's OK. But we don't know. They claimed the people in Pittsburgh had heart attacks, but in my opinion, the shot must have triggered it. They were well enough to walk over there."

Is it a gamble to avoid the shots?

Mrs. Sove sat back in her chair and hesitated. She has never had flu, she says. She doesn't get colds. She doesn't think she'll get this flu.

SHE RECALLS that she was expected to die at infancy when she needed an incubator and none was available. She was stricken with polio as a child, but survived it. She has had diptheria. She has recovered from a stroke in 1958.

She paused.

"If I lived through all this," Mrs. Sove says, "I guess I'll do all right."

Swine flu shots just too much for reporter

by PETER A. BROWN

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — My journalism teachers never told me it would be like this.

I was on a routine assignment Wednesday, covering Gov. Ella T. Grasso and Connecticut Health Comr. Douglas Lloyd getting their swine flu shots to dispel concern of the vaccine. The next thing I knew, I was waking up on the floor with cold compresses being applied to my head.

Friends who had worked in Vietnam had told me the blood and gore sometimes turned their stomach and made them feel queasy.

BUT FAINTING while watching someone else get vaccinated? What will they thing back home in Monroe, N.Y.?

Well, my seventh-grade teacher wouldn't be exactly surprised. I took a header in a similar situation there. But that time at least I was the one getting the shot.

My parents had always wondered why I went into a field fraught with danger — but I think they had in mind the perils of a battlefield, not the hazards of the Hartford Civic Center.

The session began Wednesday with Mrs. Grasso cheerfully taking off her plaid jacket and baring her arm to launch the vaccination clinic there. She told a group of reporters we had to follow her lead and set a good example.

I QUIETLY demurred.

Actually, I purposely did not watch the governor get her shot, knowing my past record. I kept my eyes on her face and avoided looking at the Buck Rogers-like airgun that popped the vaccine through her skin.

Mrs. Grasso's presence was meant to boost public confidence in the inoculation program. After taking the shot, she expressed total trust in the program. Perhaps those brave words gave me the courage to watch Lloyd roll up his sleeve.

That was a mistake. When I came to, I told the doctors I was fine and had to get to a telephone to call in my story.

They said no, I couldn't walk. They didn't want to take a chance on another collapse.

We compromised.

I may be the only reporter ever carried to a telephone by stretcher with a security escort.

ICC chief plans vote to open closed meetings

The chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission Wednesday promised a vote on opening the commission's meetings to the public will be taken when he feels a majority of the membership is in favor of the move.

Marvin S. Lieberman, chairman of the five-member commission, assured protesting representatives of the Illinois Public Action Council that he favored opening the commission's meetings, but said "procedural" problems must be resolved before the commission could consider the matter.

Lieberman's comments came after about 30 persons, including a representative for Arlington Heights homeowners' groups, chanted and demonstrated their way into a meeting with Lieberman at the State of Illinois Building in Chicago.

THE COUNCIL, A volunteer citizens' group organized in June, has been pushing to have the commission open its weekly meetings, particularly those which deal with utility rate hike requests.

Illinois law exempts the ICC from holding open meetings, although the law does not require that the commission's sessions be conducted behind closed doors.

The council has said the ICC is one of only five commissions in the country which does not hold open meetings.

Lieberman revealed Wednesday that the commission undertook a study last month of commissions in five states to determine how open meetings are conducted.

THE COST OF THE trips to the five states, which included California, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Oregon and Florida, totaled some $3,141, according to Anne Dowling, public information officer for the commission. She said three commission staff members conducted the study.

"We have moved with more than deliberate speed on this, and anything else would be counter productive." Lieberman told representatives of the council.

He refused to say when a decision on the open meeting question will come.

"The decision will be made when I feel that there are three votes that will decide the question," he said. "My impression today is if it was presented, it would not pass."

Lieberman, who last met with the group in August, agreed to meet Wednesday afternoon with six council representatives after a sign-carrying, singing rally was staged outside the locked doors of the ICC offices.

WARREN FRIEDMAN, co-chairman of the council's utility campaign, led the protesters to the ICC offices where the group was refused entrance to the commission meeting but was permitted instead to meet with Lieberman in the afternoon.

Friedman said the council's action had the support of a number of Downstate citizens' organizations who also are protesting utility rate hikes which the ICC has approved in recent years.

"We believe we have a right to be in," Bernard Willow, council chairman, said. He termed the meeting with Lieberman "a step forward."

The group also received support Wednesday from Celia Maloney, consumer advocate for Gov. Dan Walker. In a prepared statement read to the group, Mrs. Maloney said she would "support open rate-making meetings at the Illinois Commerce Commission."

A SPOKESMAN FOR Mrs. Maloney said, however, she did not know if Walker also supports the effort.

The way we see it

$50,000 in bureaucracy

Arlington Heights officials last week realized why Washington bureaucrats have a bad name.

Unfortunately, the Village of Arlington Heights paid $50,000 for the lesson. That's the amount of a discount the village lost on construction of the new Arlington Lakes Golf Course owing to bureaucratic delays.

The Arlington Heights Park District, after years of work at several levels, has title to part of the old Army Nike base. On that land, with money raised by a recent referendum, the park district will develop the golf course.

The Village of Arlington Heights is developing water retention and flood control facilities on the site. Its initial construction, which involves leveling and grading of the land and building ponds, could be under way.

The Wadsworth Golf Construction Co. offered the village a $50,000 discount if it signed the contract for the work in August, giving the company good weather in September and October in which to work.

Then the bureaucracy stepped in — or more correctly did not step in. As weeks passed, a letter needed from federal officials, authorizing construction, did not arrive. Wadsworth finally cancelled its discount.

The village could have taken a chance and signed the contract before the letter arrived, assuming it would come through ultimately. After all, it has taken years of work by local officials and U.S. Rep. Philip Crane to make the land available to the park district, and it hardly seems likely the government will back out now.

However, that action could have created problems for the village because legally it could not authorize work on the land without federal approval.

Blame for the loss of that $50,000 lies with the bureaucracy. Surely the figure must seem inconsequential when compared to the billion or so dollars the government spends each day. But back in Arlington Heights, where the single family homeowner must pay the bill, $50,000 comes out to about $3 per home.

Water rate could discourage waste

Elk Grove Village officials, faced with increasing costs of producing water from underground wells, have devised a new water rate schedule which sets a flat rate for every 1,000 gallons used.

Under the new rates, a typical family of four would pay 30 per cent more. Cost for a small business would increase 60 per cent, a restaurant 176 per cent and a typical factory 78 per cent. The water bill for the family of four would increase from $9.25 to $12.02 a month.

The new rate system makes sense. It is designed to eliminate the sliding rate schedule which favors the large water users, and it should force these large users to conserve water.

A public hearing is scheduled tonight at which large industrial water users are expected to protest the boost in rates. We understand the concern, particularly for a company like Chicago Magnet Wire, the village's largest water user. The company used 5.7 million gallons last year and paid a water bill of almost $2,500. The new rates will mean a cost of more than $3,700.

At the same time, industries must understand that the natural resource is becoming increasingly more expensive and more precious. Last summer, Elk Grove Village residents experienced low water pressure and frequent outdoor sprinkling bans because there was an inadequate water supply.

While this new rate schedule won't solve the water problem in Elk Grove, it will be a first step toward making the water system pay for itself and encouraging conservation of the water supply.

Branch library encourages more use

Opening a branch library in Hoffman Estates has proved to be what the people wanted. The extension of the Schaumburg Township system has encouraged the use of the system to increase substantially.

According to a recent survey, many residents rarely used the system's main library in Schaumburg before the branch opened in April. And since the branch opened, many of the regular Schaumburg library visitors have switched to the one in Hoffman Estates.

Library officials are excited about the increase in usership and say the branch has helped spark new interest in library services. We hope the interest continues and the novelty of a new library doesn't soon wear off.

Abortion issue clouds two voters feelings toward Nov. 2 elections

Next month, we as good American citizens, are expected to cast our vote for a leader, who hopefully will be capable of solving the many problems which confront us in this election year of 1976. It's a decision that far too many of us are not prepared to make.

For several years now, we have settled for a negative way of life, which has resulted in the accumulation of hardships far beyond the scope of human endurance. All of our well-educated experts have been available, giving us many different choices and alternatives which surely would give us a better life. Needless to say, it hasn't worked, because we continue with the same problems. In our efforts to change for the better, we have created more and more serious problems. So, here we are, and where do we go from here? Is there anyone, on earth, capable of leading us out of this turmoil, which is just about at the point of being detrimental and hazardous for human consumption.

Included in the candidates' campaigning efforts, we have heard God's name, religion, religious backgrounds and we wonder if this is being done in order to get votes, or is it because of a sincere effort to bring Him to the front because we realize how desperately we need His help and guidance?

Perhaps we need to be reinforced in our humanness and reminded that we must renew our proper place at the top of the priority ladder, and never again settle for less.

The abortion issue continues to be of great concern, even though many feel it has no place in a political battle. Since the Supreme Court made abortion legal, we have no choice but to consider it the most important issue this year. This is human life and the existence of human life, which involves all of of us. What could be more important? The Supreme Court has passed it off by giving each one of us the choice as to who shall live and who shall die. In other words, they want no more to do with it. However, the revenue coming in for this legal abortion service, I'm sure is taken in and becomes their full responsibility. I guess they're more adept at handling tax money than they are at handling human life. You've noticed they've never given us a choice as to whether or not we'll pay our taxes.

Because our government, which represents all of us, condones abortion, we who believe in God must protest and fight back in His behalf, otherwise how can we call ourselves Christians?

We've heard those who profess their belief in God, and personally do not believe in abortion, however it should be a personal decision. This statement from a believer in God, creator of all life, is a cop-out and certainly not a positive stand in behalf of human life.

We here on earth have taken on responsibilities which we are humanly not capable of handling. It's time now to thankfully accept what God gives and do the best that we are humanly capable of doing. Until this is done, how can we possibly expect His help and guidance in making our lives more livable? He, and He alone, knows what is best for Mankind.

When our government can stand up for human life, and declare once and for all, "No human on earth has the right to choose who shall live and who shall die," we will then be in a position to get on with the many political issues waiting for attention.

When I cast my vote next month, it will be for life and our Creator who gives life. More than anyone, He deserves and needs my vote at this time.

Mrs. Virginia M. Whited
Barrington

All this nonsense over abortion, which is certain to have some effect on the coming Presidential election, when Americans troop to the polls and think they elect the tallest pigmy.

A Constitutional Amendment that would not permit legalized abortion would be a shattering precedent in the U.S., being the first time that a religious concept, i.e., the "immorality" of abortion, would be reinforced by the Congress of the United States.

Since the Roman Catholic Church is leading the fight for an antiabortion amendment — spending $700,000 on the campaign in Illinois alone — it could be said that the battle to win the antiabortion amendment is actually a Catholic attempt to enshrine superstitious "dogma" in the Constitution, where the ravings of fools would be safe and secure from attack even from the U.S. Supreme Court.

But such does not have to be. To avoid such visceral warfare, we suggest that the amendment offer a little bit of religious-something for everybody. Therefore, we propose The Religious Freedom Amendment to the Constitution.

This amendment would bar all abortions (except the 800,000 abortions performed each year by quacks using butcher knives and whatever else happens to be handy). If the Catholics still remained unhappy, the amendment could also bar the sale of contraceptives (such as exists in Spain and Ireland), divorce (as in Spain) and freedom of the press (as exists in Ireland).

Of course, this would anger the Baptists, who generally think that Big Brother in Washington has no business legislating personal morality at the expense of someone else's freedom. Very well! So let the Religious Amendment require that everyone in the U. S. be baptized by total immersion and drink moonshine from a brown paper bag. Card-playing would be restricted to houses with the shades pulled down.

All this would anger many Methodists, who feel that a mere sprinkling is more than sufficient. All right, let the Religious Amendment require that every American practice alcoholic moderation (defined as one weak drink per day), and honor June 17 as a national holiday, that being the birthday of the great Wesley.

But since there is not a single logical reason why an Episcopalian should honor the beliefs of Methodists, amends must be offered. The Religious Amendment would therefore require every American to pay religious fealty to the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Naturally, Presbyterians would be gnashing their teeth in rage. However, Calvanism would be satisfied by a requirement in the R. A. that every American believe in the doctrine of predestination.

Jews would think all these Christian requirements very unfair, so it would only be just that the Regligious Freedom Amendment require every man, woman and child in the U. S. to eat breakfast eggs without bacon or ham. The sale of pork in any form would be forbidden. Americans could buy Bonds for Israel with the money saved.

Circumcision? Perhaps, though feminists would probably complain. But this could be worked out.

In short, each religious group in America would be invited to submit its own particular and peculiar doctrine to the required believing by the Constitution. Above all, we would not forget the smaller sects, such as the Pentecostal sect in the Southern mountains that demonstrates its faith by "snake chunking," the handling of poisonous reptiles.

The final article of the Religious Freedom Amendment to the Constitution would demand that "Harl Krishna" would have to be chanted by any American who would brutalize the Constitution of the United States.

Butz not really an issue: reader

A tired joke told in a private conversation becomes the focal point of news amid a Presidential campaign. It is an old joke — not at all funny — in bad taste and should have been buried along with all ethnic jokes. Scribes of the press seem to be burning the midnight oil and flipping through the dictionaries to find words to clarify the joke that included words that disrupted the college campuses in the '60's for the right to use those very words.

Considering the recent rulings regarding Ellsberg and Schorr, who meddled in the security of this country, I think the Fourth Amendment has been bent — perhaps even stapled and mutilated in Butz' case. It is indeed one thing to oppose a political figure and his issues — it is dirty pool to invade a private conversation for ammo. The same goes for bugging phones and beds in liaison with prostitutes as a few in the press did in Washington. This invasion of privacy has gone too far.

The First Amendment was never intended as a weapon. It is a freedom, applicable to the press and the people, assuring both a freedom of speech, religion, press and the right to lawful assembly. Any right used in a partisan manner, whether to influence public opinion, publicize unfounded gossip or to "enlighten" people without all of the facts — ceases to be a right or freedom — but, instead becomes a power. Unfortunately, too few people are aware of the Ninth Amendment, written to protect the people from over-zealous use of rights afforded in the other amendments of the Constitution.

Isn't it about time we got down to issues? The Presidential campaign should be brought to the people in full coverage. For the sake of the First Amendment as well as all other amendments let the nib of the pen make a broad bi-partisan stroke and not become serific. Only a knowledgeable and viable people can support a democracy. Let the people be fully aware of all of the issues. Don't let the pen 'mightier than the sword' become a switchblade!

What if police were babysitters?

My work requires that I travel a great deal of the time, and many nights during the week are spent away from home. Therefore, I would like to request that Alderman Huddleston make accommodations with the Rolling Meadows Police for the following:

1. On Monday evening, pick up my son from skating lessons and deliver him home (after all this exercise, he's too tired to walk!).

2. On Tuesday, please babysit with my children while my wife attends a church meeting (otherwise, she'll have to miss the meeting entirely).

3. ON WEDNESDAY evening, transport the entire family to the dentist appointment and back (my wife has had novacaine twice this year — she'll not be able to drive).

4. On Thursday, my son has a Cub Scout meeting and will need a ride home (my wife can't leave the house with the two small children sleeping) — an eight year old boy should not be walking home alone that far after dark.

In the event that the police should receive an emergency call while carrying these out, please instruct them to return my family home; after all, this is more important than the police carrying out their normal duties.

If you do well with this assignment, rest assured I will recommend this police assistance program to other needy families in my neighborhood.

Dow Jones up 16 points in rally over Ford pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rallied sharply on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday, reflecting investor encouragement over an end to the Ford Motor Co. strike and an improved consumer confidence.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which dropped 8.47 Tuesday to extend the market's loss in the past 12 sessions to 76.94 points, gained 15.95 to 948.30.

The advance was broad. The NYSE common stock index rose 0.65 to 54.52 and the price of an average share increased 39 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 1.31 to 102.12.

Winners held a better than 2-1 lead over losers, 1,022 to 400, among the 1,871 issues traded.

FINAL VOLUME was 21,690,000 shares, up from the 18,210,000 shares traded Tuesday.

Fueling the buying wave, the United Auto Workers late Tuesday approved a new contract with Ford, ending a month-long strike.

The market also was helped by a report that consumer confidence improved "substantially" between May and early September. The University of Michigan Survey Research Center concluded the outlook for consumer spending is "very favorable."

Prices also rose on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex market value index closed up 0.27 at 98.23, and the average price of a share gained three cents. Volume was 1,770,000 shares, compared with 1,780,000 shares Tuesday.

Auto industry notes 7% hike in 1977 car sales

DETROIT (UPI) — With the gloom of the month-long Ford Motor Co. strike largely gone, the U.S. auto industry opened its 1977 model year with a report Wednesday that showed new car sales 7 per cent above a year ago.

The No. 2 automaker said its sales dropped 8 per cent from a year ago, but spokesmen said they were confident the sales lost during the strike would be regained. Ford sales so far this year are still running 22 per cent ahead of 1975.

General Motors sales were up 13 per cent, Chrysler jumped 27 per cent and American Motors said it topped last year by 10 per cent, the first period since early May that the smallest company has been on the plus side.

The strong sales marked the 37th consecutive 10-day period, dating back to the start of October last year, that the industry has topped a year-earlier figure.

THE $1 BILLION-PLUS Ford contract was approved by a 3-to-2 margin by the 145,000 production workers and by a slim 489-vote margin by the 25,000 skilled tradesmen who could have forced the agreement back into negotiations had they turned it down.

One dissident skilled trades group, the International Skilled Trades Council, demanded a recount of the vote Wednesday and threatened legal action against the UAW leadership. The UAW said the vote tally "stands by itself."

Members of UAW Local 588 have voted against the proposed contract with Ford.

Willie Parks, unit production bargaining committeeman at the Ford stamping plant in Chicago Heights, Tuesday said production workers voted 877-435 against the pact and skilled tradesmen voted 503-319 against it. There are 3,670 UAW employes at the plant.

Business briefs

Airline asks OK of regional service

Midway Airlines Inc. Wednesday asked for certification of a plan to begin air service to six midwestern and eastern cities with flights originating from Chicago's Midway Airport. Irving Tague, Midway president and former head of Hughes Air-West, said the request for certification was filed in Washington with the Civil Aeronautics Board to operate a regional airline. He said the airline plans to fly to the six "most traveled to" cities within a 500-mile radius of Chicago.

Edison weighs rate boost

Commonwealth Edison Co., which serves 2.7 million customers in northern Illinois, may ask for a rate hike, company spokesmen say. But the spokesmen said no decision has been made how big a rate hike request would be. If the utility gets permission from the Illinois Commerce Commission to increase its rates, the hike probably would not be felt until late next year because the ICC has 11 months to accept or reject such requests. Commonwealty Edison was granted a two-stage rate boost in 1975 which amounted to about 12 per cent or $206 million.

Local authorizes Fiat strike

Members of United Auto Workers Local 1027 voted overwhelmingly Tuesday night to authorize the union's executive board to call a strike against Fiat-Allis Co., if no agreement is reached before the current pact expires Nov. 1. Union officials said the strike authorization was approved by 98 per cent of union members who voted.

Kemper chief hits flaws

Palmer App, vice president of the Kemper Insurance Companies, Long Grove, Wednesday criticized flaws in the administration of partial disability awards under the Illinois workmen's compensation program. Speaking before the workers' subcommittee of the Illinois Insurance Study Commission in Lockport, App said, "In comparison to other states, Illinois has for many years been paying out a good deal more money on permanent partial claims which involve very minor injuries." App called for a review of disputes involving insurance payment to injured workers and revision of attorney's fees. He cited examples of workmen's compensation claims paid in Illinois, including an award of $4,089 for a bruised hand, when medical expenses totaled $184.

Specialty store to open

A grand opening celebration for the new T.L.C. store in the Market Place Shopping Center, Des Plaines, is scheduled Friday through Sunday. The store name is an acronymn for "Terry Lira cares," representing the store owner's name. The shop features cards, gifts and specialty items including fabric flowers.

Liberty Bell replica at bank

A replica of the original Philadephia Liberty Bell will be on display at the Wheelng Trust and Savings Bank Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Descriptive brochures about the bell, cast in France in 1950, will be available at the bank.

Tax form mailing delayed

Perhaps the most unwelcome item in everybody's pre-New Year's mail — their income tax return form — will be delayed about two weeks next year, the Internal Revenue Service said. The IRS announced income tax forms for 1976 will be mailed about two weeks later than usual because of late enactment of the tax reform act. It has been customary for IRS to mail 1040 long forms and 1040A short forms between Christmas and New Year's Eve. An IRS spokesman said the 1040 forms should now be in the mail between Jan. 3 and 11 and the 1040A is expected to be mailed about Jan. 7.

Jobless check snarl near end

The backlog of Illinois unemployment compensation payments delayed by a computer system breakdown should be eliminated by Saturday night, said Tom Revane of the Division of Employment Security office in Mount Prospect.

Revane, manager of the 40 N. Main St. office, Wednesday said computer problems began Oct. 6 and continued through Monday. Persons who receive unemployment compensation payments may experience up to a week's delay, he said.

"Anybody who dropped off the U.C. forms last week hopefully will start receiving payment at the end of this week or the first of next week," Revane said. The computer problem was "a one time shot," he added.

The Division of Unemployment Compensation is part of the Bureau of Employment Security in the Illinois Dept. of Labor.

Woodfield magic more than sales receipts: official

by LEA TONKIN

Jan Rasmussen likes to think the magic of Woodfield will survive.

As the Schaumburg shopping center marks its fifth anniversary this fall, Rasmussen and other Woodfield retailers look forward to continued collective success.

Gross sales at the world's largest enclosed retail development reached $258 million during 1975, a Woodfield official said.

But Rasmussen says there's more to magic than sales receipts. As manager of the Scandinavian Design store and president of the Woodfield Merchants Assn., he points to the variety of merchandise, location, security, special events and other attractions provided by Woodfield management and 226 retailers.

"EVEN THOUGH we're 5 years old, there is still the magic of the world's largest shopping center," Rasmussen said. "We hope to be able to retain some of this magic."

There are many success stories to tell at Woodfield, Rasmussen said. He notes that the major tenants in the center — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field & Co., Lord & Taylor and J.C. Penney — are major drawing cards for shoppers.

The quiet disappearance of several retail operations during the past five years, including the exit of a fabric store, a furniture showroom, a women's apparel store and other outlets is another story.

Rasmussen said Woodfield merchants must gear their selection and displays of merchandise to the local market. "We're very much right in the middle," he said of merchandise prices.

Despite the entry fee of leasing and store furnishing costs, the lineup of Woodfield merchants continues to feature new names. Cheese and sausages, women's apparel, jewelry, shoes, children's clothing and the famous McDonald's hamburgers are the stock-in-trade for newcomers.

ONE OF THE RELATIVELY new outlets at Woodfield is the John's Garage & Filling Station restaurant. "We've had a healthy business and a lot of fun," said Manager Betty Brady. The restaurant has been open for business a year and four months.

Ms. Brady said the restaurant's casual decor and selection of foods attracts customers of all ages. She noted that the variety of Woodfield eateries is a continued attraction.

Busloads of visitors from surrounding states provide one measure of Woodfield's magnetism, said John Maloney, manager of the Woodfield Sears store.

He said the Sears outlet and the mall itself will continue to draw crowds from nearby suburbs, as well as distant locations.

Woodfield provides an indirect benefit to retailers who choose to locate in the vicinity of the complex, said Rick Mastro, owner of the Country Cutters, Ltd., men's hair styling salon. His shop is located at 712 E. Higgins in the Hippodrome Plaza. Mastro, who formerly worked at a Woodfield shop, believes Woodfield's success has spawned secondary development in surrounding areas.

Woodfield merchants strive to maintain a "good neighbor" policy in the community, said James J. Caniglia, managing director of the center's Lord & Taylor store. He describes Woodfield as "a regional center that reaches out to three or four states, but at the same time has local roots."

A "bright, promising future" at Woodfield is forecast by Caniglia. He describes the Lord & Taylor market as "mass, with class," noting the variety of tastes served by Woodfield merchants.

Final motions due Friday in land fraud case

Final motions are to be filed Friday by the attorney for an Arlington Heights couple who has charged the owners of Vacation Sites Inc., Schaumburg, with attempting to bilk them in a fraudulent land deal.

Edward Riordan, attorney for Darrell and Lawana Stewart, 208 S. Burton St., is expected to file the motions Friday. A court date could be set after pretrial actions are completed.

The Stewarts are suing Vacation Sites Inc. and its owners, John and Loretta Olson, and Jaffe Commercial Finance of Chicago in connection with a land sale. The Stewarts allege the Olsons attempted to give them false credit on a Florida farm they own to encourage them to buy a 10-acre farm in Wisconsin.

Riordan said the Stewarts also named the finance company to restrain the company from collecting payments for the land. Riordan asked that the note be canceled.

JAFFE COMMERCIAL Finance holds notes for some of the alleged fraudulent land sold by Vacation Sites, Inc. An attorney for Jaffe Commercial Finance said a countersuit has been filed to protect the company from losing money in the deal.

The Olsons and Clifford W. Kortas of Palatine were named in a federal complaint Tuesday seeking to stop them from doing business. The complaint was filed in U.S. District Court by U.S. Atty. Samuel K. Skinner in behalf of Carla A. Hills, secretary of the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

It charges the Olsons, who own Vacationland Sites Inc., 830 E. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg and Paul Smith, an associate, with defrauding persons in a land business which involved trading Illinois owned property for a down payment on Wisconsin recreational land.

The federal complaint charged the four sold some 155 lots without advising purchasers of the true financial commitment involved. It also charged them with failing to give purchasers the opportunity to rescind their contract, as allowed by federal law.

The federal complaint was filed four months after the licenses of the Olsons and Kortas were revoked by the Illinois Real Estate Examining Committee.

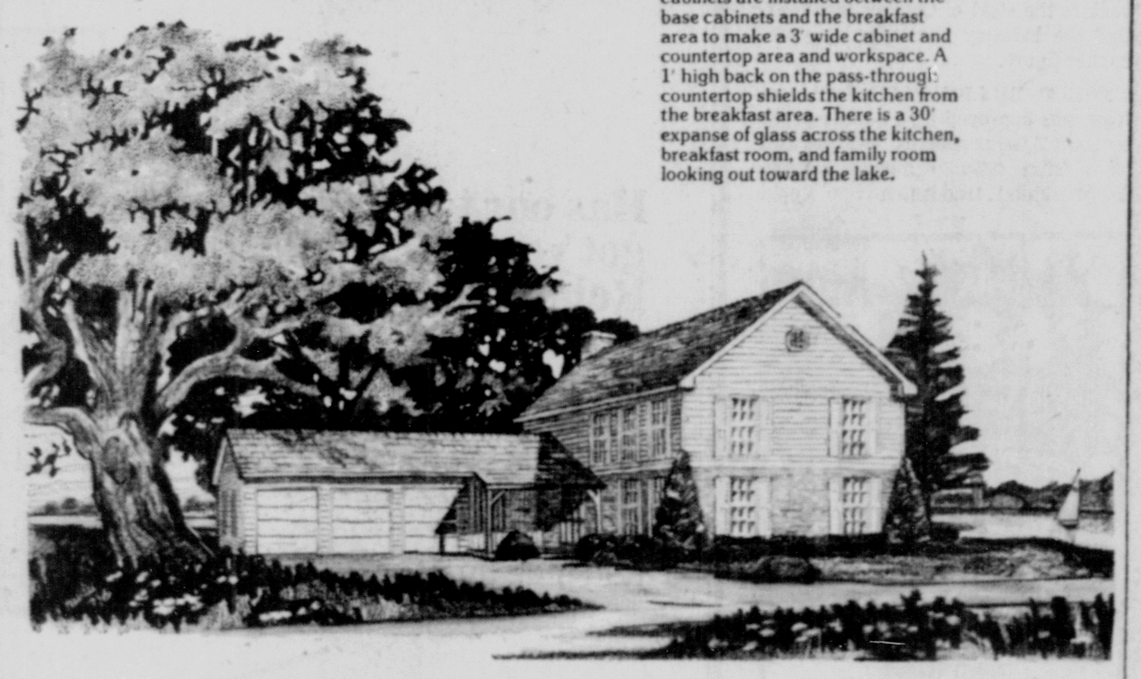
THE IDEA HOME

The home pictured below, like most of our homes, includes a full basement, three car garage with electric door opener, air conditioning, humidification, brick or stone veneer, cedar siding, screened-in porch, oak cabinetry and two fireplaces. In addition, our Idea Home has many unique concepts:

Idea No. 1—Site Planning
As with all homes designed by Barrington Construction Company, the Idea Home was individually designed for the natural terrain of the lot. The lot is on a corner with a large lake on one side and woods on the other, so the family room-kitchen areas take maximum advantage of both the lake view and the seclusion. The screen porch is as private as if it had a fence around it since the woods shield it from the street and other houses.

Idea No. 2—Entrance
The centrally located foyer distributes traffic to six areas: The living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, den and second floor. The foyer floor is a country brick ceramic tile. Since this is a home in the country, with unusual vistas, the foyer was designed to let you see through the family room to the woods, through the kitchen to the lake, and through the living room to the front lawn.

Idea No. 3—Kitchen
The kitchen is designed in a country motif. The cabinets have oak panelled doors in walnut finish. Total cooking capability is provided by a microwave oven, a self-clean oven, electric cooktop, indoor grill and griddle. The ceramic tile cooking center is framed with heavy, solid cedar beams and columns dark stained. A new type of kitchen sink has an oversized compartment for washing large pots and pans. Instead of peninsular wall cabinets which cut the kitchen in half, the wall cabinets are installed between the base cabinets and the breakfast area to make a 3' wide cabinet and countertop area and workspace. A 1' high back on the pass-through countertop shields the kitchen from the breakfast area. There is a 30' expanse of glass across the kitchen, breakfast room, and family room looking out toward the lake.



Idea No. 4—Family Room/Screened Porch
The family room is panelled with rough-sawn horizontal cedar boards of the same pattern as the exterior siding. The ceiling has heavy rough-sawn cedar beams that are solid timber. On each side of the fireplace, sliding glass doors lead to the large screened-in porch and patio overlooking the lake. The screening goes all the way from the floor to the underside of the cedar rafters, to give you an open feeling.

Idea No. 5—
The "Whatever-you-want-it-for-Room"
Most people have always wanted an extra room for some special use: Library, office, guest room, sewing room, music room, game room, study, den, you name it. This room is directly off the foyer, with sliding glass doors leading to the screened-in porch. It has a full wall of floor-to-ceiling bookcases.

Idea No. 6—Owner's Suite
Upstairs, there are four large bedrooms. The owner's suite is several rooms in one. A fireplace divides the sleeping area from the sitting room. There are sliding glass doors from the sitting room and the dressing room to a wood deck overlooking the lake. The dressing room has three-way, full-length mirror doors, a double walk-in closet with 20' of clothespole, and a large linen closet. There are double bath vanities and a luminous ceiling over the vanity area with full-height mirror completely covering two walls.

DIRECTIONS: Northwest Tollway Exit north on Barrington Road. Go 1½ miles north to the entrance of Sunset Ridge Farms. Turn left (west) and follow signs to Idea Home.
The Idea Home is open Sunday through Friday 1:00-5:00 P.M., Saturday 10:00 A.M.-5:00 P.M.

Duffey key in Jimmy's liberal appeal

Carter won't alter basis of campaign: adviser

by STEVE BROWN

Democratic Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter will stick to his standard campaign themes, updating his information but not making startling changes, said one of his key issues advisers.

Joseph Duffey told The Herald that Carter will continue to receive new information about developing situations but that his basic campaign themes will not be altered for the final Presidential debate.

Duffey, who headed Presidential campaigns for former U.S. Sen. Eugene McCarthy and U.S. Sen. George McGovern, rejected the notion that Carter has been fuzzy on issues.

"I THINK SOME part of the perception that Carter is fuzzy comes from the fact that Gov. Carter refuses to simplify some questions with cryptic answers or simple promises," Duffey said.

He also said that sometimes a candidate's position is not reported by the media because it is geared to reporting crowd sizes or other matters.

A native West Virginian who lost to Lowell Weicker in 1970 during a U.S. Senate race in Connecticut, Duffey said his upbringing in the near-southern state allows him to understand Carter more easily than some of his liberal friends in Washington.

Duffey, 44, a former priest who served as the chairman of the Americans For Democratic Action, is recognized as a "certified" liberal by observers and is seen as a key in Carter's attempt to win over liberal supporters.

He was Carter's representative on the Democratic Platform Committee and a floor manager at the Demcratic National Convention.

"THE PLATFORM has withstood the challenges from the Republicans, and it has helped to reunite the Democratic party," he said.

"There is a tremendous desire for unity in the country; no one President does it by himself, but he can help," Duffey added.

He pointed out Carter's pledge to operate an open government that is responsive to the public as a key reason for Carter's success.

Duffey said Carter is unlike most candidates in that he is very knowledgeable and "tends to take his own positions and not have someone take his positions for him."

While the main staff or the Carter campaign is headquartered in Atlanta, Duffey coordinates activities in Washington and works with task forces develped for specific projects. He will travel between Washington and various parts of the country during the closing days of the campaign to brief other campaign workers and gauge Carter's efforts.

He said the changes in the campaign financing laws have diminished the amount of information that can be distributed about candidates, but he said the Carter campaign responds to questions about issues.

DUFFEY, WHEN not involved in political campaigns, is the director of the American Assn. of University Professors in Washington.

While he does not seek a role in the administration if Carter wins, Duffey said a victory would mean an administration "more hospitable to higher education, which would help college professors."

Duffey said some politicians' initial reluctance to accept Carter came in part from him being a Southerner and part from being separate from the Washington establishment.

"Many of them thought that how could you know something about national politics if you haven't been a senator or a congressman," Duffey said.

He also said that part of Carter's strength comes from his belief that a candidate does not need to have a definite position on every issue but should offer a set of principles by which he would take a position.

"There is a lot of hope that there will be some unity within the party and the country. I think the people want that," he said.

The Romagnolis' MEATLESS COOKBOOK

Friday, October 15th

from 7 to 9 p.m.

Margaret & G. Franco Romagnoli have written a splendid introduction to an unfamiliar aspect of classic Italian cooking — meatless dishes. They will be demonstrating some of the tempting, nourishing recipes found in The Romagnolis' Meatless Cookbook at Kroch's & Brentano's in Randhurst Shopping Center, Friday, October 15th, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The Romagnolis appeared on their own television show, "The Romagnolis' Table," on the PBS network and wrote a cookbook by the same name. Said Time Magazine of this book, "Italian family fare, presented with a brisk, nothing-to-it insouciance guaranteed to dispel even a beginning cook's fear of frying."

Come to Kroch's & Brentano's on October 15th. Meet the Romagnolis, get a copy of their exciting new cookbook, and sample "insalata di funghi torinese," "zucchine marinate," "crespelle napoietane," or one of the other savory meatless recipes they will be preparing from THE ROMAGNOLIS' MEATLESS COOKBOOK. $8.95

Ask Andy

Kangraoo—animal of few 'words'

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to George Winard Jr., 13, of Pointe-Gatineau, Quebec, Canada, for his question:

WHAT SOUND DOES A KANGAROO MAKE?

Dogs bark, cats meow, wolves howl and elephants trumpet. Most mammals utter, in fact, many different sounds which they use for a variety of reasons — courtship, danger, territoriality or to proclaim their identity. The vocal language of some, the dolphin, for example, is so complex it is a field of study in itself.

On the other hand, some animals hardly ever express themselves vocally. The kangaroo makes a low grunting noise when disturbed but, other than this, usually remains silent. This is not to say he lacks the ability to communicate. Far from it, the 50-odd species convey tenderness for their young and awareness of the group they belong to through many physical gestures.

The baby kangaroo, called a joey, begins life as a tiny, inch-long, blind and hairless creature. Although weak and defenseless, he does have claws on his front legs which he uses to pull himself through his mother's fur to a safe and cozy place in her pouch. Here he nurses nonstop for about three months during which time he grows and grows.

Fully formed and curious, the joey hops out of the warm pouch to investigate the world outside. Should something he sees or hears frighten him, he scurries back into the pouch. Mother kangaroo is very happy to cart baby around for several months, but when he gets too big she lets him know his freeloading days are over by repeated cuffs. This may not be as clear-cut an explanation as parents give their human youngsters, but the joey gets the idea.

Perhaps one reason kangaroos are so silent is that they prefer to flee from predators rather than face them in physical combat. Unlike snarling, roaring, screeching predatory animals on the attack, kangaroos simply hop away majestically in 15- to 20-foot bounds.

Kangaroos live in a closely knit group, and sitting together in the sunshine, nibbling away at tender grass, is companionship of the best sort. And for sport there's nothing like a good old-fashioned boxing match between two males, called boomers. With intervals for rest, the sparring twosome might continue the rounds for several hours. It's just for fun, and neither cares who wins.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Johannes Heykoop, 13, of Fenwick, Ontario, Canada, for his question:

COULD YOU PLEASE TELL ME ABOUT CLICK BEETLES?

If a turtle, by some misfortune, happens to get turned over on its back, there's big trouble ahead. It can't bend in the middle, like we can, and just sit up; it has to struggle and try to right itself using its stubby legs. A click beetle has the same problem as the turtle. The click beetle however has a little trick he can use to right himself and proceed on his merry way.

There are some 300 different kinds of click beetles found in North America, and they all have the ability to flip themselves up into the air. If one happens to find itself in an upside-down position, it bends its head and the forward part of its body backward. All of a sudden it straightens its body out, forcing a small spine on its chest into a special groove. With a click loud enough for us to hear, the beetle is flipped into the air. Hopefully, it lands on its feet, but if not successful on the first try, it's clip and flip until it is.

Many ways to bid and play

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The less said about the bidding of today's hand, the better. Not that six hearts isn't a reasonable contract, but there must be as many ways of bidding those North-South cards as there are bridge players.

South went up with dummy's ace of spades, led the 10 of trumps and finessed. West took his king and laid down the queen of spades. South ruffed and went into executive session. There were three ways to play. One was to lead a trump to dummy's seven and take the club finesse. If that worked he would draw trumps, discard one club on a high diamond and repeat the club finesse.

The second line was to cash the ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond, enter dummy with the seven of trumps and, assuming trumps broke 2-2, hope to be able to run the diamonds.

South decided on a third line of play that didn't offer quite as good a chance mathematically, but gave him an opportunity for lots of thought at the end of the play.

Neither of the first two lines would work. His line did. He simply ran off all his trumps while discarding down to four diamonds and a club in dummy. Then he went after diamonds and since the queen was kind enough to drop he was home with the slam.

(From over 30 States)
Large 21' x 16' Booths
Arlington Park
Arlington Heights, Ill.
30 Miles Northwest of Downtown Chicago
Oct. 14, 15, 16 & 17, 1976
Thurs., Fri. & Sat. 12 Noon - 10 p.m., Sun. 12 Noon - 6 p.m.

Last April over 15,000 people attended the first antique show & sale at Arlington Park, one of the best attended antique shows in America. This is one of the most diversified antiques shows in the United States. You must see the tremendous amount and variety of antiques to believe it. Many of the nation's most distinguished dealers from over 30 states will be at this fabulous show. The dealers are selected for honesty, integrity, and large stocks of quality antiques. Many of these dealers do not exhibit at other shows in this area. The show floor is 800 feet long and 150 feet wide. This is the largest sale of antiques in America, valued at over $10 million.

This October antiques show & sale is bigger and better than the last show with many different exhibitors. There is no other show that can compare to this sensational event with something of interest to everyone. Please don't forget. Arlington Park is where the largest quality antiques show & sale in America is held and you are invited to attend.

Fields to malls

Shopping centers follow residential development trends

by LEA TONKIN

Hey, this is the place.

When developers decide to turn Farmer Jones' field into a snazzy shopping center, they are usually following the path of proposed residential development.

Those air conditioned shopping malls that dot the suburban scene sprouted out of the mass migration from the city to outlying areas.

PLOTTING THE like of Schaumburg's Woodfield and Mount Prospect's Randhurst, commercial developers were aiming at hefty retail profits that — at that time — were several years down the road, said Richard Boyd, manager of research for Homart Development Co.

Homart is a subsidiary of Chicago-based Sears, Roebuck and Co. The company, which has launched shopping centers throughout the metropolitan areas and in other states, joined with the Taubman Co. in the development of the biggest enclosed mall of them all, Woodfield, which opened in 1971.

Selecting a site for a shopping center is "pretty simple, but it really doesn't yet approach the point of a science," Boyd said. "It's more of an art form.

"Generally, there is some agreement by major retailers in a given market that they all seem to have a need to locate in a given segment of that market."

Once a group of major retailers decides to jump into a new market area, the availability and price of land in the target area are studied. The pace of commercial development can be set by factors such as development of transportation systems and sanitary sewers, Boyd said.

"AT WOODFIELD, the site was ready to go about nine years, but it was held off until nearby tollway work was created," he said of the Schaumburg development.

Anchor tenants such as Sears, Marshall Field & Co. and other major retailers are lined up by the developer. During the five-year lead time from initial plans to store opening, a number of smaller stores will sign on the dotted line.

If the developer has done his homework, the new center will hit the new market "right on the head," Boyd said. The company's new Northbrook Court project and Hawthorn Center in Lake County are examples of merchandising geared to specific markets.

Eventual saturation of suburban shopping center markets will spur developers to seek out sites near the city or in other metropolitan areas. "The beauty of being a developer is that you aren't limited to one area," Boyd said.

THE SHIFT OF people and an increasing chunk of buying power moving to suburbia has had a dramatic impact on the retailing industry, said Bob Moore, Homart's director of marketing. "Shopping centers are basically a suburban phenomenon," Moore said. He said U.S. shopping center stores accounted for $153 billion in retail sales during 1974, a 44 per cent share of the market.

Suburban shopping centers will continue "moving in the direction determined by the retail world," Moore said. He cited U.S. Dept. of Commerce figures indicating the number of households in U.S. suburbs will increase 18 per cent by 1980. Roughly 50 per cent of the nation's buying power will be generated by people living in the suburbs.

"People have come to expect things like enclosed malls," Moore said. Interior design and esthetic features such as fountains are tailored to meet local tastes, he said.

Although developers say they've progressed beyond the dartboard approach the shopping center planning, the resulting wave of new buildings that usually follows some centers is less than welcomed by residents of an area.

GENE KIMMET, associate professor of economics at Harper College, Palatine, said that when a major retail chain chooses a successful center such as Woodfield, the smaller shopping centers and other stores that usually follow can swamp a market.

"Most small companies are not very dynamic. They may not anticipate trends," he said.

The selective migration from the city to the suburbs will continue to shape retail development of the future, as indicated in a recent report prepared by Fabian Linden, researcher for the New York-based Conference Board organization. The extensive regrouping of the U.S. population to suburbia continues despite the economic turbulence of recent years, Linden said.

Economic and social segregation are by-products of the trek to suburbia. "The average family that goes suburban tends to be younger, has a higher level of educational achievement, and is much better off financially than the one that remains in town," Linden said. "The family that is left in the city tends to be older, less well-educated and less well-off."

Linden's conclusions are echoed in a Paddock Publications market research report for 11 Northwest suburban communities. Of the families surveyed in 1974, more than 80 per cent reported incomes of $15,000 to $24,999, more than 80 per cent of the males had some college education or a college degree, 83 per cent of the females complete high school or college and more than 78 per cent reported professional and managerial occupations.

"All of this has had, and will continue to have, far-reaching consequences: in our political choices, in the way we finance community needs, in the way we travel, in the goods we buy — in short, in the way we live," Linden concludes.

Lack of foresight blamed for deterioration of cities

The deterioration of American cities has resulted from the lack of foresight in leadership at all levels in American society, but the process of decay can be reversed, according to the nation's largest supplier of funds for residential mortgages.

In an essay on "The Plight of the Cities" contained in its recently published mid-year financial report, the Federal National Mortgage Assn. said that while housing is the focus of much debate on urban decay, the problems are far more encompassing.

"To the extent that our cities are dying," the association states, "the failures are more than housing failures. They are failures of city governments, state governments, the federal government, the home building industry, and the nation's financial institution and they are the failures of leadership of political and social establishments big and small throughout the country."

WHILE NOTING THAT it has a heavy investment in the nation's urban areas — $11.9 billion in single-family mortgages in the 30 largest metropolitan areas — the corporation says "Continued deterioration of American cities will have consequences which transcend FNMA's investment interest."

Pointing to its own commitment to the nation's cities, the corporation states: "It is FNMA's position that private industry can do much more, and should do so."

"Nevertheless," it continues, "certain areas are clearly the responsibility of government — private industry cannot be expected to bear the burden. One of these is in the area of housing subsidies for low and moderate income families. Where financial assistance is required, it will of necessity have to be provided by government agencies."

On the question of redlining, or neighborhood disinvestment, the association asserts: "Disinvestment by financial institutions is largely a result rather than a cause. For the most part, it follows private disinvestment by property owners and public disinvestment by local governments.

"THE HOMEOWNER who fails to repair the front gate or replace a broken window is disinvesting. So is the city that fails to repair the streets or pick up garbage and the one which reduces the level of fire or police protection.

So, while the finger of blame for a multitude of urban ills has been pointed at the lending institutions, "a host of public policies spelled out in federal, state and local laws and in zoning, housing and building codes and regulations, work together to the detriment of urban neighborhoods," the corporation said.

The association, more commonly referred to as Fannie Mae, is a stockholder-owned corporation which provides support to the housing market by purchasing mortgages. It currently has more than 1.5 million mortgages on residential properties, representing housing for nearly 2 million American families. These investments total approximately $32.1 billion.

Spurred by Bicentennial

Traditional homes in big demand

Housing's next big sales grabber — what will it be? "Traditional-look homes are soaring to the top of the list," said Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group, Inc. IMIC, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry, which works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings bank, and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

According to Goss, builders are discovering that federalist, colonial or "Georgetown" homes in single-family or townhouse styles are in heavy demand — due in part to Bicentennial-generated interest plus a growing feeling that traditional architecture will endure.

"As an extension of the nostalgia 'kick' of the 1970s," Goss notes, "the renewed popularity of the New England front or colonial-style house is quite obviously, not surprising.

"Developers have discovered that many homeowners are willing to stretch budgets to secure classic styling. A comfortable, appealing home which lasts a lifetime and more is apparently worth the additional cost," he said.

The traditional-look trend is especially favored by young professional households 30 years-of-age and up — looking for a home in which to raise a family, entertain friends, and establish lasting neighborhood ties.

"While the 'basic house' continues to appearl to younger couples and to appeal to younger couples and empty-nesters, the grace and roominess of traditional-look homes are also helping to generate renewed sales interest," Goss said.

Ginny Mae investing needs much money

About real estate

by Don G. Campbell

It's the worst-kept secret in the world: all other things being equal, real estate — purely as an investment — has a far, far better track record than virtually any other investment available to the individual of modest circumstances.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I've always been interested in real estate as an investment. This has been strengthened by the knowledge that I have made far more money through the buying and selling of homes that I have occupied over the years than I have in the stock market, or in anything else.

Now, as I am facing retirement, I have heard of someway that a person with a modest amount of money can invest in FHA and VA mortgages and get a pretty good return with absolute safety. Unfortunately, that's where my knowledge of the subject ends. Can you give me any leads? — Mr. W. T. U. (Allentown, Pa.)

ANSWER: Investing in first mortgages is normally a pretty institutionalized affair; the savings and loan associations, banks and other big lenders have pretty much of a hammer-lock on the field. A few wealthy individuals have been involved in it, but even for them, the lack of diversification in carrying three or four mortgages has always made this something of a risky investment.

The investment that you're referring to is known as "Ginny Mae" pass-through certificates. Ginny Mae stands for Government National Mortgage Assn., which is a wholly-owned corporate entity of the U.S. government which markets "packages" of mortgages guaranteed by either the VA or the FHA.

You can buy these certificates in minimum denominations of $25,000 (and in additional increments of $1,000). The interest (currently running about 8.3 to 8.4 per cent a year) is paid monthly by check and represents a partial return of your principal. They are also backed up by Uncle Sam. Very attractive. If you'd like more details send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover handling, to: Don Campbell, P.O. Box 2751, Phoenix, Ariz., 85002.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We are interested in purchasing a home that has been repossessed by the VA. The property has been vacant for at least seven months. Needless to say, it is not in A-1 shape, but our offer wiojld be to buy it "as is."

We contacted a broker listed on the sticker on the house and were advised that the house would be for sale in three or four months. He said it is in the hands of the VA and until the title is cleared it won't be for sale.

We called the title company and were referred to the VA and then back and forth to several people there before being told that we couldn't buy it "as is." The VA has to inspect it and take care of what they decide is necessary to make it salable. The more time that elapses, the more taxpayers' money that is being wasted. We are interested in your explanation of this bureaucratic red tape. — Mrs. M. E. P. (Avondale, Ariz.)

ANSWER: Some things, like childbirth, the quantum theory and government bureaucracy, simply defy easy explanation. I've had complaints along this line before and there's just nothing very comforting that I can tell you. The VA insists on bringing these repossessions back up to its minimum standards before putting them on the market again. It tends to be a long and agonizing process.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

We are a young couple, recently married, and are beginning to think about buying a house. My father-in-law has suggested that we buy an older, reasonably priced house and then, in time, use the "equity" in this to buy a better place. I'm new at this. What does he mean by this? — T. T. M. (Hartford, Conn.)

ANSER: Your father-in-law is simply suggesting that you "trade up." The word "equity" is the interest in, or the value of, a house in excess of the mortgage indebtedness on it. After two or three years, the combination of the payments that you will have made on the house and its natural appreciation in value (we hope), will give you enough equity to turn around and apply this to the downpayment on a better house.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I rent a small house near a local high school and I am bothered all the time by students trespassing — lounging around in my yard smoking, drinking and what-not. I've complained to the landlord, but he doesn't do anything at all. — Ms. P. K. (San Diego, Calif.)

ANSWER: Sorry, but legally it's not his responsibility. Call the gendarmes.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Before buying a house, it may be wise to get a professional opinion on its condition from a qualified expert. This is especially true in the case of older structures where the effects of time may not be obvious.

An expert should check and report to you on such things as the structural stability of the house, the heating and air conditioning systems, the electric wiring and the plumbing. His job is not to fix the price at which a house should sell but to establish its condition.

We may be able to evaluate the condition of a house. Where more expert opinion is needed, we can refer you to well-qualified specialists. Our job is to help you gain your objectives where real estate is involved. It will pay you to "Talk It Over" with us . . . no cost or obligation for our opinions. opinions.

Cost gap narrows between new, older homes in area

Prices of existing homes in the Chicago area have climbed more rapidly in recent years than have prices of new homes.

As a result, the once significant gap between new and existing home prices has narrowed sharply, according to the mortgage bulletin of Home Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago.

According to the bulletin, prices of existing homes in the Chicago area rose from $32,200 in $970 to $58,800 in July 1976, a 51.6 per cent increase.

During the same period prices of new homes rose from $39,540 to $49,100, a 24.2 per cent gain.

James H. Dvorak, Home Federal president, said that so long as inflation persists the cost of all homes will continue to move upward.

But he said that in view of the recent sharp rise in prices of existing homes, "it would not be surprising if the price hikes on existing units are slower in the next few years and if the competitive position of new housing improves."

Dvorak added that factors behind the surging demand for existing homes include a build-up in the supply of mortgage funds, a slowdown in new construction, some fears that the energy crisis might make travel to outlying subdivisions difficult and some belief that older homes are "better values."

Analyzing the current mortgage market, he said savings trends "are basically positive at the present time" and the supply of mortgage funds promises to remain ample.

Noting that lending rates on conventional loans had moved up in both July and August, he said he believes mortgage rates have "peaked out," at least temporarily, and that the final 1976 quarter will see growing competition for home loans with perhaps some interest rate concessions on more conservative loans.

Meanwhile, he noted that a pre-election "lull" in the economy continues to work in favor of conditions in the residential mortgage market.

A few months ago it had been expected that by this time continued economic expansion would mean an increase in business loans and upward pressure on interest rates. But he observed that a pick-up in credit demands by business firms has yet to materialize.

Home Federal's mortgage bulletin is designed to help keep the Chicago area's residential real estate community appraised of local housing and home mortgage trends.

Teakettle-hot water at a turn of the tap

One of handiest little appliances that can be installed in your kitchen, family room or recreation room is a hot water dispenser that yields teakettle-hot water.

A tap resembling a conventional faucet is installed at the counter. The "mechanical" equipment goes under the counter and consists of a water tank and a heater in a canister. The tank has a storage capacity of 60 cups.

Uses for the dispenser include instant soups, cocoa, coffee, boiling eggs or frozen vegetables, making puddings or gravy — in fact every phase of cooking that requires boiling water, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau notes.

Some timely tips on snow blowers

Visions of shifting sand dunes turn all too quickly to swirling snow drifts. A refreshing thought for a lazy autumn day, perhaps, but, also a realistic reminder for homeowners that it's none too soon to "think snow" before the farmers finish baling hay.

Now is the time to be thinking about replacing or purchasing your next major piece of snow removal equipment, according to marketing specialists at John Deere, a manufacturer of walk-behind snow blowers and heavy-duty, tractor-mounted snow removal attachments.

Walk-behind snow blowers, for example, should be purchased before the first major snowfall when consumers are frequently pressed to make an immediate and sometines snap judgment based on available stock. Instead, say the experts, consider the purchase of a snow blower an investment much like any other home appliance. Assess your property requirements well in advance of the season, and then shop around beforehand to determine what type equipment will best meet your individual needs.

Except for color, most snow blowers in the 5- to 8-HP range look pretty much alike. But, when you get down to details—and you should—you'll discover that some models offer superior quality and performance for the price. Here are some hints from John Deere to help you evaluate the assorted walk-behind snow blowers now on the market:

• Look at the engine. Is it winterized? Will it start easily in cold weather? Check to determine if the carburetor is enclosed in a heat-retaining box to protect throttle and engine linkages against freeze-up. Does the spark plug have a moisture shield? Does the fuel-cap extension have vent ports to help prevent inner ports from freezing over?

• Note multiple speed selections and the machine's capabilities to match varying snow conditions. Most walk-behind snow blowers offer three or more forward speeds; at least two offer six forward speeds and a reverse. Evaluate this aspect in accordance with your requirements.

• Ask your dealer to explain design features. From an engineering standpoint, two-stage design featuring a low-speed auger which feeds snow into a higher-speed discharge blower is considered the most effective way for a walk-behind snow blower to function.

• Check tire size, treads and traction. Are the wheels driven by a limited-slip differential? Are they too small to climb curbs?

• Last but not least, learn how to operate your newly-purchased snow blower when you buy it. And before using it, be sure to review the operating instructions again.

Day-long appraisal meet Oct. 27

Reservations are being accepted for the all-day appraisal conference to be conducted Oct. 27, at the Holiday Inn in Glen Ellyn, 1250 E. Roosevelt Rd., said Richard A. Rauch, president of the Chicago Real Estate Board.

"Appraisal of Residential Properties" is the annual residential real estate appraisal conference presented jointly by the Illinois Chapter of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and CREB.

A panel of veteran appraisers will explain the different elements of a residential appraisal and provide helpful insights based on their own experiences. According to Chapter 6 Pres. George Mercer, the program is of significant interest to real estate brokers and salespeople as well as new and veteran appraisers.

Speaking on "Basic Principles and the Appraisal Process" will be Edward Erickson, MAI, SREA. Erickson is presently regional appraiser for the Federal National Mortgage Assn. He formerly served for four years as the Eastern Regional Manager, Real Estate Appraisal Section of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

W. B. Stoutamoyer, MAI, SRPA, GRI, will discuss "How to Analyze Market Data." Stoutamoyer is currently with his own firm of W. B. Stoutamoyer & Associates. He has spent 27 years in the real estate business, which includes building over 750 homes in the Normal-Bloomington area, instructing several appraisal courses and appraising properties for welfare agencies, corporations, insurance companies, states, lawyers, investment buyers as well as residential buyers and sellers.

Luncheon speaker is Earl L. Neal, special assistant, corporation council, City of Chicago, Dept. of Law. Neal will discuss "The Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago's Tunnel and Reservoir Plan."

Alvin L. Wagner, Jr., RM, SRA, will present a "Demonstration of a Residential Narrative Appraisal." Realtor Wagner is the owner of A. L. Wagner & Co.

"Demonstration of a Residential Form Appraisal," is the topic Edward J. Batis, RM, SRA will handle. Batis is the owner of Edward J. Batis & Associates, and has more than 20 years experience in real estate including financing as well as appraising.

Tuition for the program is $30 per person and includes a packet of reference materials and conference aids, lunch and refreshments. Reservations and further information may be obtained by contacting CREB, 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, 60603.

Timing important

Home buying—wait or act now?

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

It seems that every year about this time we receive a volume of letters from people who are interested in buying houses. They invariably ask whether they should wait until spring or summer to buy.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We have been looking at houses for a long time. Though we are really serious about getting out of our apartment and setting up housekeeping in our first house, all our friends tell us it's best to wait until spring or summer to buy.

In spite of what our friends say (and after all, they're not professionals), a broker who has shown us a number of houses in the past six months keeps urging us to buy now! He insists that houses will cost more next spring and summer.

Is this true, or is the broker saying it to make a sale? — TO WAIT OR NOT TO WAIT?

If you are serious about buying a house, don't wait until spring. Do it now! You will gain nothing by waiting. Your broker is right, in my opiniin. By next spring good properties will probably be higher priced.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am always very careful to use my appliances properly. Rarely do we need to call a repairman. That is, except for the garbage disposal.

In order to make sure the grease dissolves, I always use hot water when the garbage disposal is working. In spite of my being so careful, stoppages occur in our waste line several times a year.

The plumber tells me that if I used cold water, this wouldn't happen. That doesn't make sense to me. How can cold water dissolve the grease and fat? — AM I WRONG?

Your plumber is right. Generally, cold water should be used in operating a garbage disposal unit because it will help prevent stoppage of waste lines. Cold water causes grease and fat to congeal into tiny globules. In that way, they are easily flushed down the sewer system. Hot water tends to melt the fat and grease, thereby coating the drain line. After a while, the buildup of grease and fat will cause a stoppage.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My husband and I are buying a brand new house, and we are thrilled! It's our first, and we want everything to be just perfect.

The reason I am writing to you is that we have been given a choice of carpeting or vinyl tile for our hallway. Friends have told us that vinyl tile lasts much longer than carpeting. But since they don't have as much knowledge as you, we shall rely on your opinion. — TELL US, TELL US!

Your friends have given you correct information. According to all I've been led to believe, carpeting must be replaced approximately twice as often as vinyl tile. And particularly in the hallway, which gets much wear and tear.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We have been occupying the same house for 20 years. I moved here as a bride. We are located on the main street of our town, and the neighborhood around us has been changing.

Many of our neighbors have moved and new business establishments have taken their place.

Yesterday, we received a notice by registered mail that our property is being rezoned from residential to commercial. Since this is our house, we have no intention of starting a commercial enterprise here.

Does this mean that we must move immediately? How can we delay it?

— TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

You don't have to move at all! Just because a property has been rezoned does not mean that an existing use must relocate. You can continue to occupy your house as a nonconforming use.

Plant shrub border

Privacy possible with corner lot

It's your landscape
by George Creed

The desire for privacy varies with individuals. It is important to some; not so important to others. However, a little privacy, it seems, is a condition most people find desirable.

How you obtain privacy on a corner lot depends much on the design of your house and how it relates to the streets it faces.

With interior lots (lots not on a corner) the front is known as the public side and in most communities this side is left open to public view, planting being limited and fencing, if any, low and ornamental in character.

Corner lots, by contrast, have two public sides. If you live on such property, you can have as much or as little privacy as you desire. For complete privacy you can do one of four things along the side street view of hour house: Plant a heavy shrub border. Plant a hedge and let it grow tall and thick. Erect a solid fence. Combine two or more of the options mentioned here.

For some, but not total privacy, you can use any of the foregoing choices, limiting them in scope. The insurance of partial privacy is the theme of the accompanying plan.

The plan preserves a spacious open feeling in the property as a whole, yet it provides areas where privacy is possible. This is accomplished by carefully arranged planting and by a small length of fence partially enclosing a paved terrace at the rear of the house.

A fence, used as it is here, should be just high enough so that people on the closed end of the terrace cannot be observed from the street. It should be decorative in character — a stockade type fence as shown here, perhaps. Planting at the other end of the terrace will ensure privacy from your next door neighbor while planting will also provide it at the rear of your property.

With an arrangement like this you are not shutting yourself out from the world — you are merely providing yourself with some small areas where you can enjoy those moments when you desire privacy.

Questions and Answers

Q. I have a beautiful crab apple tree and would like to have more of them. Can I grow them from seed from my crab apple?

A. You can, but the results probably will not be satisfactory since your tree most likely is a hybrid. Seedlings from hybrids are very unpredictable.

Q. My poplars are dying at the tops. Can I save them by cutting out the dead branches?

A. You can try, but your poplars are more than likely infected with a disease that is incurable.

Fire detection units aid safety

Deaths and injuries could be reduced if fire detection systems were installed in single-family dwellings, a spokesman for the Kemper Insurance Companies says.

Robert W. Satterfield, vice president and manager of Kemper's Loss Control Engineering Dept., said that according to studies by the Los Angeles Fire Dept., 75 per cent of fires in dwellings begin as slow, smoldering fires.

"A fire detection system would be able to detect this heat or smoke and sound an alarm in time for the property-owner to move to safety," said Satterfield.

SATTERFIELD SAID the public should be aware of the advantages, and limitations, of fire detection devices currently on the market.

"The home fire detection device is still relatively new to the marketplace and the consumer is not fully informed on its capabilities or the things to look for when purchasing one," Satterfield said.

"The most important thing to remember is to buy one that is listed by either the Underwriters Laboratory or Factory Mutual. Both these testing organizations have specific criteria that must be met before receiving their listing certificate. The UL and/or FM stamp will be on any listed product," he said.

"Selection of a detection system should take into consideration the sensitivity, reliability, maintainability and the length of service or stability of the system," he added.

THE INTENDED LOCATION of the device also should be considered before purchase.

"Some heat sensitive systems can be affected by being placed in direct sunlight. Others will activate if placed too near a furnace or heating duct," said Satterfield.

Another common question concerns whether a detection device should be battery-operated or plug-in.

"Theyboth have advantages and disadvantages, but there is no reason a concerned home-owner couldn't use either one or a combination of the two," he said.

Satterfield said that the best and most effective way to learn what type of fire detection system would be correct for each individual situation is to contact an established firm providing fire detection systems.

OWNERS OF multi-story homes should consider a chain ladder as a supplement to the fire detection systems, according to Satterfield.

"Many children, if trapped upstairs by flame or smoke, are afraid to jump out of second-story windows. Many times they will try to avoid the smoke by hiding under a bed or in a closet. A chain ladder provides them a second chance to escape," he said.

According to figures from the National Fire Protection Assn., 70 per cent of all fires in homes originate in the living room, kitchen or basement. About 50 per cent of the fires occur between 9 p.m and 6 a.m., meaning that 57 per cent of the fatalities were probably asleep at the time of the fire. A delayed discovery of the fire was significant 68 per cent of the time.

"This would indicate to me that some type of reliable automatic fire detection would be a valuable investment for any homeowner," Satterfield said.

First 8 months housing nearly matches 1975

In the first eight months of this year housing permits to the metropolitan Chicago area reached 23,101; in all twelve months of 1975 housing permits totaled only 23,564; according to the monthly Bell Federal Savings Survey of Buiding.

"This will give you an indication of the strength of the local market for both single family and multi-family units," said Roland J. Barstow, president of Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

"If you compare the 13,689 permits reported in the first eight months of 1975 with the 23,101 registered so far this year you will note a favorable increment of 69 per cent," said Barstow.

"Multi-family units have improved substantially after being depressed for the past two years," noted Barstow. "Multi-family permits rose from 4,755 to 7,356; an increaese of 55 per cent.

"Single family units continued their rise from 8,934to 15,745; an increase of 76 per cent.

"This also ties in with the activity of the existing home market which has continued strong through the summer and into the third quarter of this year. You can't have a strong market in new housing without substantial activity in existing housing. From all indications demand will remain strong in both areas in the last quarter of this year," said Barstow.

Firm will tell you how to do it

Save energy and improve health

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Energy Mizers offers its customers reduced utility bills and possibly improved sex lives.

The firm — soon to be renamed the Energy Conservation Co. — makes energy efficiency its business.

Customers are given a free energy survey of their home. An individual analysis is made of energy demands and possible means of reducing gas and electricity use.

Some things the company recommends, such as regrouting windows, the homeowner can do on his own. Others, such as additional insulation, the firm can arrange. A few items, including energy efficient lighting, the company sells itself.

The special fluorescent light bulbs use 10 per cent less electricity, said Cliff Reddick, one of the firm's "residential engineers." Improved sex life and general health is a fringe benefit, he said.

"It reproduces the sun's spectrum. It's just healthy. It's like being out in the sunlight for a few hours. Some research indicates people's sex lives get better. It helps the body in production and absorption of vitamin D."

Benefits offered by most Energy Mizer recommendations are more mundane.

"Almost everyone is aware of the steps individuals can take to save on home utility bills," said owner Charles Burks. "But so few people actually take the time or effort to do it. We make it easy for them."

The home survey determines not only what energy conservation measures would be effective in a particular house, but how long it would take the homeowner to recoup the initial expense in utility bill savings.

Energy Mizers' residential engineers calculate the amount of savings a homeowner can realize in heating and cooling costs from adding one to six inches of attic insulation, installing wind turbines or coating windows with a sun screen film.

The company also sells solar water heaters and is about ready to design solar-powered space heating systems, said Burks, a real estate salesman for 10 years.

Burks decided to organize the company last year because he thought there was a special need for energy conservation assistance to homeowners.

"Eventually we're going to try to get to the point where everything that we can recommend for a house is something that we're experienced with and can do," Reddick said.

THE SURREY PARK octominiums in Arlington Heights are more than 50 per cent sold out, according to developers. Total dollar volume in sales so far this year is reported to be almost $2 million.

Surrey Park Octominium sales almost at $2 million

Developers of Surrey Park report total dollar volume in sales thus far in 1976 to be almost $2 million. The unique octominium community, which opened in October 1974 is being developed by Charles G. Matthies, Inc. in Northwest suburban Arlington Heights.

When completed, the community, which is now more than 50 per cent sold out, will consist of 15 octominium buildings to include a total of 120 units.

"Residents particularly like the fact that they share only one common wall with a neighbor. We have no middle units — all are located on corners of the eight-unit buildings," says Al Collins, sales manager of Surrey Park. "They also like the idea that they share their building with only a small number of people. The average number of people in each buildng building is less than 20.

"We also feel that a great deal of Surrey Park's appeal is its architecture. Not only does each building have the appearance of a large, expensive single-family home, but the octominiums have been designed in a variety of exterior elevations. This givs the community a distinct and interesting appearance.

"The three-acre lake and landscaped grounds make Surrey Park a pleasure to live in; our residents like the "naturalness" of our surroundings," he said.

Surrey Park's centrally located lake, stocked with fish, is also ideal for winter time ice skating. Two tennis courts and a swimming pool with bathhouse are available for residents' use.

The residences, all two-bedroom with two-baths, are priced from $37,900 to $49,900. Monthly assessment fee is approximately $50. Special features of each home include a master suite with separate dressing area and vanity, wall-length closet, a large, 25-foot storage closet, an entry foyer with guest closet, an eat-in kitchen, a dining area and attached garage.

Included in the purchase price of each octominium are individually controled electric heating and air conditioning, insulated glass windows, a Couch intercom security unit, a master TV antenna system, kitchen with self-cleaning oven, ducted air exhaust unit, 15.7 cubic foot self-defrost refrigerator/freezer, dishwasher, hardwood cabinets, formica counter tops, stainless steel double sinks and disposal, choice of 12 decorator paint, appliance and ceramic tile colors, and bathrooms with cultured marble vanity tops.

To visit Surrey Park take the Kennedy Expressway to the Nothwest Tollway. Exit at Arlington Heights Road, then turn north one block to Algonquin Road. (Ill. Rte. 62) and west six blocks to New Wilke Road. Turn right to the models, located at 1404 South New Wilke Rd. The sales office is open daily from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. or by calling 253-7040 for an appointment.

Charles G. Matthies, Inc., creator of the first legal condominiums in Illinois following the passage of the Condominium Property Act on July 1, 1963, has developed numerous luxury condominium buildings in the Chicago area, Colorado, the Bahamas and Jamaica.

Bring summer to plants by heating greenhouse

Comes the end of summer many a home gardener stands by helplessly as all his flowers begin to wither and die. After spending so much time in planting, weeding and watering, it seems as if the season is over just as it was getting started.

But not anymore.

According to the Better Heating-Cooling Council, for just a little money the home gardener can build a greenhouse alongside his house. If his home has hydronic (hot water) heating, the greenhouse can be heated by extending the home heating system. It would be like heating another room.

Of course, the gardener, should find out if his heating system has enough capacity to handle the extra load. The council said, however, that many residential boilers produce more heat than is actually needed.

A greenhouse is not a hot house. Many of the finest flowers as well as a number of vegetables, do not need a night temperature higher than 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Blooms are of better quality, insects are less bothersome, and fuel bills are much lower when you grow plants 'cool.'

Since the demands of the home and the greenhouse dovetail, it will be easy for the heating system to take care of the new area. During the day the greenhouse will receive all the heat it needs from the sun and won't need a boost from the heating system. At night, when it does require heat, the needs of the home are less. Most people lower their thermostats from-five to eight degrees when they retire for the nihgt.

Hydronics is highly regarded for greenhouse heating. Since it is a sealed system, without fumes, it is safe for plants. The heat is also steady and not subject to sudden fluctuation. With the climate and all other growing conditions under the gardener's thumb, he'll have better results all year long.

Booklet on boilers

An eight-page instruction booklet for operation and maintenance of boiler heating systems is available for 50 cents including postage.

Clearly illustrated to show the components of residential steam and hot water heating systems, the booklet suggests adjustments the homeowner can perform and explains what to do in the event of an unexpected shutdown.

Twenty-seven energy conserving tips are also provided, some of them particularly related to boiler operation. The booklet No. 1274 can be purchased from the Better Heating-Cooling Council, P.O. Box 262, Berkeley Heights, N.J. 07922.

Finishing a custom-built Capp home yourself enables you to save thousands, compared to the cost of having a general contractor build the same house on your lot. You'll see how a homebuyer can custom design his dream home . . . and work step-by-step with Capp in making his dream come true.

Because the house you'll see is unfinished and ready for its owner to complete, you'll get a chance to see Capp custom-built quality close up. At this open house, nothing is hidden. And you'll learn how you can finish your home with materials and instructions we provide.

Yes, it will be a different experience — an eye opener, for sure. And you'll probably walk away saying, "This is how I'll make my dream come true."

Please come. You owe it to yourself.

HERE'S HOW TO GET TO THE OPEN HOUSE.

Playoff momentum shifts to Kansas City

Geegan responds to 'break', prepares for mighty Michigan

College football has been a game of breaks for Northwestern's Pat Geegan. Just check the record:

• Fall of '74 — he played briefly with the varsity and led the team in punt returns.

• Fall of '75 — he didn't play at all after suffering a fractured arm in practice.

• Winter of '76 — he found out that Greg Boykin would play one more season. Had the No. 1 offensive tailback gone to the pros, Geegan would have had a shot at the top job.

• Fall of '76 — he fcund himself No. 1 when Boykin — the all-time Wildcat rushing leader — was injured.

This most recent "break" occurred last Saturday at Indiana, and the 6-foot-1, 191-pound junior was ready to make the most of it.

Although the Wildcats lost, 7-0, this former Rolling Meadows prep star was sensational in his substitute role, carrying 32 times for 134 yards.

"I wasn't expecting to run 32 times," said Pat. "Maybe 20 or 25, but not 32."

Prior to this Big Ten game, he had only carried 15 times for 46 yards. Geegan said he couldn't remember ever carrying so many times in any game on any level.

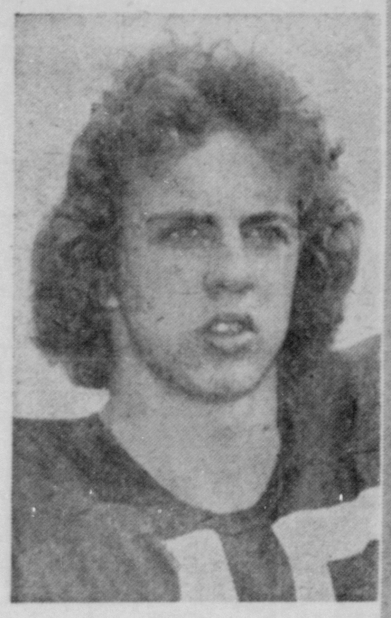
"I'm still recovering," he said Tuesday, after learning that Boykin was out for the season. "I've been taking whirlpools every day and trying to run it off."

Like college football fans everywhere, Pat was impressed by Ricky Bell's performance last Saturday night. The Southern California superback carried 51 times for an incredible 346 yards.

"He's got to be hurting now," said Pat. "I don't feel too bad when I read that kind of story. Bell's a heck of a runner. I like watching him run. I know I can pick up a few tips from him."

Geegan said he learned a lot from Boykin, too. When Boykin passed up the pros for one more year of college ball, Pat admitted "it was frustrating. I had a chance to start if he didn't come back.

"He's been a good teacher, you might say. He has been coaching me on running, moves and stuff like that. Actually, it helped me more than it hurt me.



PAT GEEGAN

"It's too bad for Greg . . . We're not only losing his great running ability, but he was a great leader, too."

All the tips and all the coaching in the world won't help Pat and his teammates this Saturday. Michigan's coming to town.

"It's not every day you get the chance to play the No. 1 team in the country," said Pat. "Everybody's pretty keyed up for this one."

The awesome Wolverines of Michigan have blasted five straight opponents. It was just a year ago that they mauled the Wildcats, 69-0. That mid-season massacre started Northwestern on an 11-game losing streak — longest in its history.

"We've kept our spirits up despite not having won a game," said Geegan. "Only one small mistake has kept us from winning."

Geegan, who's carrying a 'B' average in a sociology major, will have quite a thrill starting his first game before his friends and family.

"We're hoping we can score about 100 points against Michigan," he chuckled. "That's what we need right now."

He and his teammates could also use a few prayers for survival, too.

NEW YORK — "The shoe is on the other foot," said Kansas City's Hal McRae after the Royals beat the New York Yankees 7-4 Wednesday to send their best-of-five American League playoff to a decisive game tonight (ABC-TV) at 7 p.m.

"They're in the position we were in today," said McRae, who broke out of a slump with a double and a triple to help the Royals to victory. "We beat their big man, their ace, Catfish Hunter. He's the man who was supposed to win the pennant for them and we beat him.

"Now we have the momentum. I don't care who they pitch, they're just not going to have the same confidence in him as they have in the Catfish.".

Nineteen-game winner Ed Figueroa was named to start on the mound for the Yankees in the decisive game, but Manager Whitey Herzog was undecided about his choice for the Kansas City Royals.

Herzog said he will make his choice from among Dennis Leonard (17-10), Marty Pattin (8-14), Al Fitzmorris (15-11) and Paul Splittorff (11-8).

"I have no idea right now," said Herzog. "It would have been Splittorff but I had him up working in the bullpen. Right now I'm leaning toward Leonard because he's got an exceptional fast ball and throws strikes when he's on.

"Winning is new to me so I didn't really think about selecting a pitcher until now," he added. "I'll go to my room and have a couple of scotches and maybe I'll come up with a gem."

Splittorff, the big left-hander from Arlington Heights, turned in a brilliant relief job Sunday as the Royals won, 7-3. He tossed 5-2/3 innings of shutout baseball to earn consideration for a start tonight.

But in an all-out effort to win Wednesday's crucial game, Herzog had Splittorff throwing hard in the bullpen when the Yankees showed signs of rallying in the seventh.

Losing manager Billy Martin singled out little Fred Patek's two-run double in the second inning Wednesday as the key play in the Royals' playoff-squaring triumph.

"The ball could have been caught," said Martin. "But my man (centerfielder Mickey Rivers) lost it in the background. It was the key play — one which could have gotten us out of the inning."

Behind Martin's reasoning was the thought that Hunter, the Yankees' "money man," needed only time to get his stuff together. Hunter, given the assignment of pitching the game that could have given the Yankees their first pennant since 1964, was eventually routed in the fourth inning.

John Mayberry walked to open the second inning but Hunter retired the next two batters. Cookie Rojas kept things alive with a single and then Patek, at 5-feet, 4-inches, the smallest player in the majors, hit a drive to right-center field.

Rivers tried a back-handed shoestring catch but the ball fell under his glove for a two-run double and Patek scored the third run of the inning moments later on a single by Buck Martinez.

Hunter, however, discouraged the idea that he would have come around in time.

"I just didn't have anything," he said. "I was working with three days of rest and all year long we worked with a four or five day rotation. I just don't think my arm was used to it."

"I've been playing in the major leagues for 10 years and this is the most fun I've ever had," Patek said.

Asked if it was his hitting performance of the year, Patek said, "No, tomorrow will be."

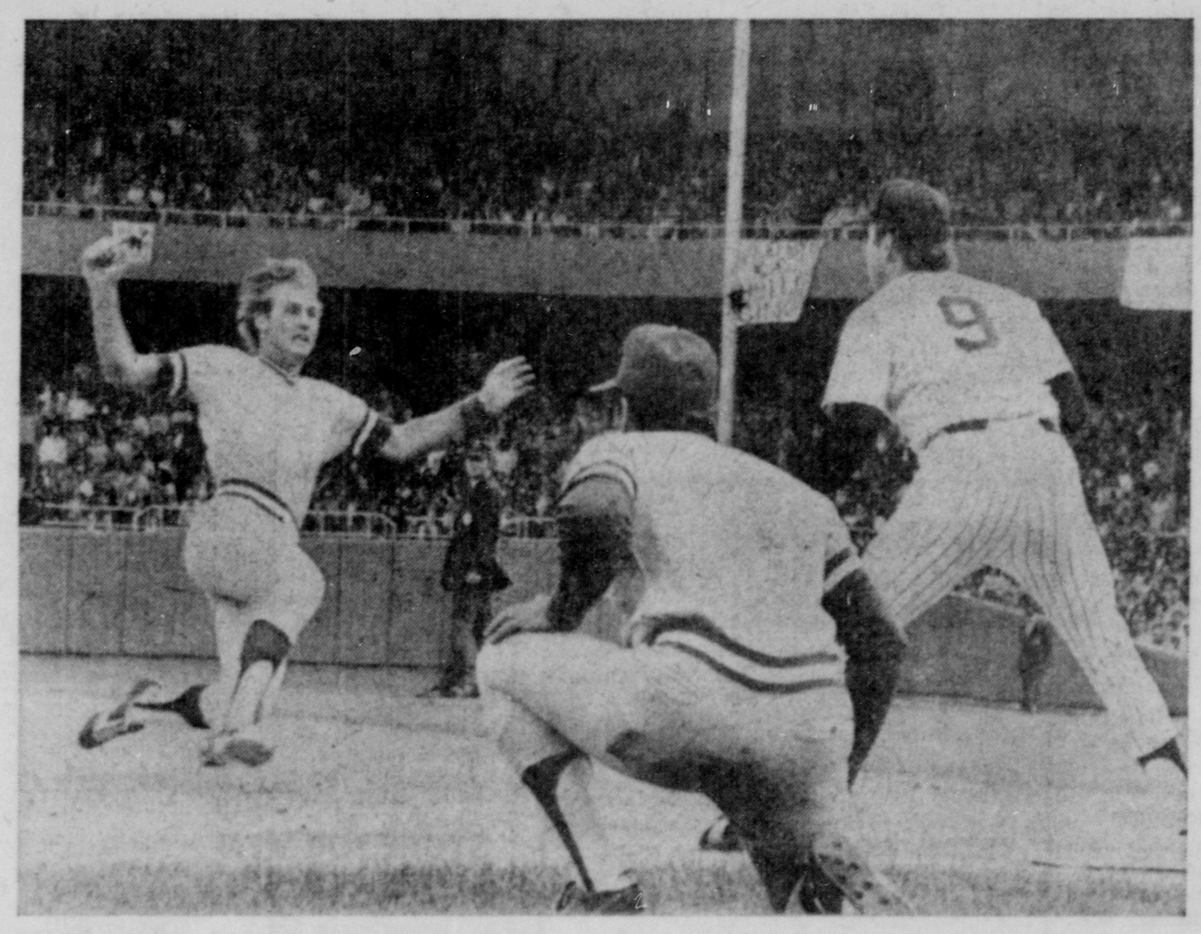
Kansas City's 3-0 lead was trimmed to 3-2 in the bottom of the second when Chris Chambliss led off with a single and Graig Nettles rocketed a two-run homer into the upper deck in right field.

The Royals knocked Hunter out in the fourth on Hal McRae's double (his first hit of the series), Jamie Quirk's triple and a sacrifice fly by Cookie Rojas for a 4-2 advantage and stretched it to 6-2 in the sixth on McRae's triple and Quirk's sacrifice fly.

The Yanks rallied in the seventh on Oscar Gamble's double, a wild pickoff throw by Royal reliever Doug Bird and an infield out. Mickey Rivers and Elrod Hendricks followed with harmless singles.

The Royals capped their scoring on a single by Rojas and Patek's double while the Yanks added one in the ninth on Nettles' second homer of the game.

And so, the battling Royals are still alive and within one victory of the first pennant in their history. They beat the Yankees' best pitcher and go into today's final game feeling they can spring an upset.



KANSAS CITY'S Jamie Quirk slides into third on a run-scoring triple Wednesday afternoon. New York's third baseman Graig Nettles awaits late throw. Quirk then scored the Royals' fifth run on a sacrifice fly. Kansas City dumped the Yankees, 7-4.

Black Hawks power past Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh used a scattergun approach against the Black Hawks Wednesday night, but the strategy just didn't work.

The Penquins outshot the Hawks, 43-28, but all except one of Pittsburgh's efforts was rejected by Chicago goalie Tony Esposito as the Black Hawks maintained their lead in the Smythe Division with a 4-1 triumph in the Stadium.

Jim Harrison, Darcy Rota and Cliff Koroll scored second-period goals to wipe out an early 1-0 Penguin lead established by Rick Kehoe at 1:28 of the middle frame.

Harrison tied the game with his first goal as a Hawk with a tip-in at the 3:54 mark and Rota earned what proved to be the winner at 9:21 of period two.

Bobby Orr set up Koroll with a finesse pass at 19:33 of the second period during a Hawk powerplay and Pit Martin capped the scoring, again with Pittsburgh shorthanded, with assists to Koroll and Orr.

Runners to battle in final duels

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross-Country Editor

It's all over but the shouting — and a little more running.

Conference divisional races have been decided for all practical purposes in the Mid-Suburban League, but the 13 cross-country teams (at least 12 of them) have one more dual meet to get out of the way before the conference meet Oct. 23. And in some cases, the standings could be affected.

Nothing, however, can change the fact that Fremd and Hoffman Estates have clinched their respective division titles.

Nevertheless, a full slate of duels is on tap for tonight, perhaps the most important of which is the Prospect-at-Conant clash. The Knights (3-2) have a shot at tying Conant (4-1) for second place behind Hoffman Estates (5-0) in the South.

Also a possibility in the South division is a three-way tie for second. Forest View (3-2) could sneak in if the Falcons win their duel at Schaumburg (1-4).

The other South meet features Hoffman Estates at Elk Grove (0-5). Rolling Meadows (2-4) has already completed its league schedule of dual meets.

In the North, Fremd (4-0), the state's No. 4 ranked team, hosts Wheeling (0-4), Palatine (3-1) visits Hersey (2-2), and Arlington (2-2) entertains Buffalo Grove (1-3).

Division records count for half in the final league standings. The other half, of course, is the team's performance in the conference meet, scheduled this year for Buffalo Grove's Ivy Hill course a week from Saturday.

The girls conference meet, to be run at Buffalo Grove the same day as the boys race, figures to be a three-way struggle of teams from Wheeling, Hersey and Palatine.

Wheeling, undefeated in dual meets and led by senior Gail Miloch, has the upper hand. Palatine and Hersey, each with one loss, will face off tonight for second place in the league dual-meet standings.

"If we can beat Palatine, I think we've got a shot at Wheeling," said Larry Travis, who coaches the Hersey girls as well as the boys. "We've got the two girls who run well, they've got one."

Hersey's Margaret LaPorte, out for part of the season, will be back in action tonight, joining teammate Mary Ahern in the Huskie lineup.

Palatine's No. 1 runner is Joan Kelly, one of the top runners in the league, but Pirate coach Pat Gleason has almost more harriers than he knows what to do with.

Tuesday night when the Pirates beat Prospect 15-50, Gleason watched 13 of his girls finish in front of the first opponent.

"We've got a lot of depth," said Gleason almost apologetically. "We've got more depth than anyone.

"I think we've got a chance to beat Wheeling," continued Gleason. "First we have to beat Hersey."

The team that wins tonight's duel between Palatine and Hersey will have a clean shot at Wheeling in conference. The Wildcats meet Fremd tonight and should protect their undefeated record.

Falcon kickers triumph

Forest View maintained its runner-up spot in the standings behind front-running Fremd Wednesday night by defeating Hersey, 3-1, in a Mid-Suburban League soccer match.

Mike Goszczycki opened the Falcons' scoring unassisted on a penalty kick in the first quarter and Tom Siroka provided what proved to be the winner by heading a perfect corner kick from Willi Klein into the Huskies' goal.

George Brousalis capped Forest View's scoring in the third quarter, assisted by Goszczycki before Hersey avoided a shutout on Bob Klaus' unassisted tally.

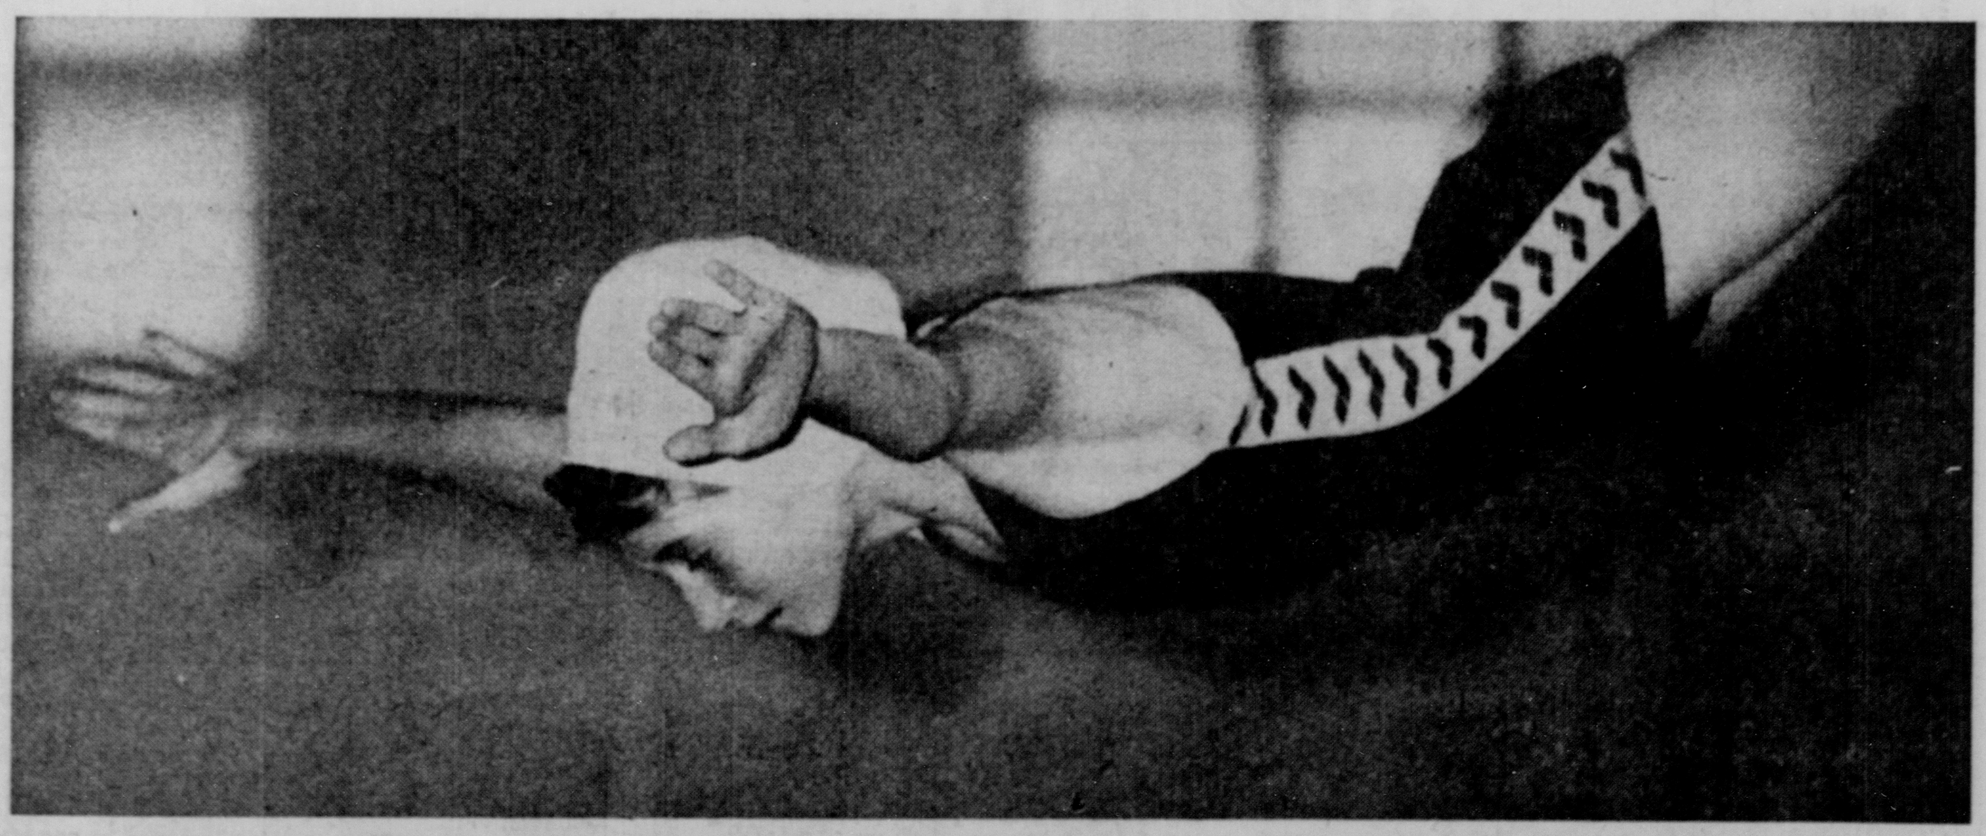
The triumph was Forest View's ninth in succession after a season-opening loss to Fremd. Falcon goalie Kelly O'Brien was near-perfect with a dozen saves.

"The score could have been much worse," Forest View coach Al Beard observed. "But Hersey's goalie Jim Cowden played an exceptional game with 20 saves. Some of those were from point-blank range."

Forest View relied on the playmaking of both Willi and Wolfgang Klein at halfbacks and fullbacks John Hegel and Dave Marofske. The Falcons' offensive pressure was determined by their 10 corner kicks to Hersey's one.

MSL STANDINGS

1. Fremd 5-0-1, 2. Forest View 5-1-0, 3. Elk Grove 4-1-1, 4. Wheeling 4-1-0, 5. Arlington 3-2-1, 6. Hoffman Estates 2-3-0, 7. Hersey 1-3-1, 8. Prospect 1-4-0, 9. Rolling Meadows 1-5-0, 10. Buffalo Grove 0-5-0.



Forest View diver Patrice O'Mera heads down in a recent meet her Falcons lost to Elk Grove, 93-76.

Rams' QB Harris to miss Bear game

LOS ANGELES — Quarterback James Harris suffered a badly bruised right shoulder in the Los Angeles Rams' 16-0 shellacking by the San Francisco 49ers Monday night and will be out of action for the next two games, the Rams disclosed Wednesday. Harris was sacked 10 times during the Monday game but he played the full four periods.

Coach Chuck Knox said he had not yet made a choice for the starting quarterback in the Rams' game against the Bears Sunday between Ron Jaworski and Pat Haden or in the following week against the New Orleans Saints. "I feel very badly for James Harris because I know how much it means to him to play," said Knox.

The Bears, meanwhile, have three probable starters in wide receivers Bo Rather and Ron Shanklin (knees) and guard Noah Jackson (foot). Other probables for the Rams are center Rich Saul (ankle), tackle Doug France (arch), backup center Goeff Reece (knee) and wide receiver Tom Geredine (ankle).

Ali claims Perez fixed Frazier bout

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champion Muhammed Ali took the witness chair Wednesday in the trial of a libel action against him and said he believed there was an attempt to fix his 1974 non-title bout with Joe Frazier. On the day of the fight, Ali said, he received a telephone call about noon in which an anonymous caller told him: "We're not worried about you. We have the referee."

The statement was made in response to a question concerning Ali's thoughts as to why referee Anthony Perez called the second round short after Ali had hit Frazier "very hard" with a right. "I truly believe he (Perez) had a bet with someone," Ali said, claiming that at the time Perez called the round short Frazier was "wobbly" from the blow to the jaw and "his knees were buckling." Ali won the 12-round bout by a decision.

"I can't point a finger, but I believe it," Ali said about the alleged Perez bet. The witness also said he believes to this day that Perez was "paid off by gangsters." Ali testified for half an hour at the trial in U. S. District Court and is scheduled to resume his testimony Thursday when the trial resumes at 9 a.m. He was subdued and testified in tones not much above a whisper.

Ashe to face Borg in tennis final

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S. C. — Arthur Ashe, scoring his first win ever on clay against Ilie Nastase, defeated the fiery Romanian 4-6, 6-4, 7-6 Wednesday to gain the men's singles final in the $195,000 World Invitational Tennis Classic. Ashe will meet Bjorn Borg in the men's final Friday. Borg defeated defending tournament champion Rod Laver Monday on opening day of the week-long tournament.

In the women's doubles finals, the team of Evonne Goolagong and Sue Barker defeated Virginia Wade and Martina Navratilova 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. Goolagong meets Wade in the women's singles finals Thursday. The winner of the tournament's $50,000 first prize will be determined by a point system. Each match is of equal significance in points scored.

Inflation hits the price of a brawl

MONTREAL — National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell Wednesday announced fines totaling $9,750 against the Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles Kings for two bench clearing incidents in a game Sunday. In addition to the fines, Campbell also suspended the Flyers' Bob Kelly and Andre Dupont from Philadelphia's game Thursday against the Montreal Canadiens for leading the bench clearing incidents.

Campbell fined Kings coach Bob Pulford $350 for stepping onto the ice in the first period of the game and grabbing linesman John Brown. Pulford was ejected from the game for the incident, becoming the first coach in nine years to be ordered from a game. The Flyers were assessed team fines totalling $4,000. The first $1,000 was for the initial bench clearing incident started when Dupont left the bench. The club was fined a further $3,000 for a second bench clearing incident started by Kelly.

"Should the Flyers lead another such incident, it will cost the club $5,000 as will each subsequent bench-clearing incident instigated by the Flyers," Campbell warned.

Confident Morgan holds full house

CINCINNATI — New York, Kansas City . . . or Timbuktu. It really doesn't matter. The Cincinnati Reds will beat anybody in the World Series, according to their all-star second baseman Joe Morgan.

"Frankly, I don't see anyone beating us. Not the way we're playing now. We're playing great," said Morgan. "One of these days we're going to be acclaimed as one of the best teams ever to play the game." The Reds, who swept the National League East Division champion Philadelphia Phillies in three straight games to win the pennant, are hoping to become the first N. L. team in 54 years to win successive world championships.

Morgan feels the American League will have its hands full trying to stop the Reds. "We're a better team than we were last year," said Morgan. "Ken Griffey and George Foster have a year's added experience and we have a better bench with guys like Bob Bailey and Mike Lum.

"Of course, anything can happen in a seven-game series, but a team is going to have to score a lot of runs to beat us. And we're too solid defensively to really let that happen. I don't think any team can shut us out, either. Like I said last year, I have a full house and it can be beat. But it's going to take a hell of a hand to beat it and I'm gonna win most of the time."

Harper golfers slip to fourth

Lake County played its usual role of imperfect hosts and swept to top honors at their own invitational golf meet while a surging Harper contingent slipped to fourth.

Lake County posted a 30. That easily outdistanced Danville's runnerup showing at 312. DuPage was third at 318.

Nelson fired a 79. Rick Groessl, Steve Spielmann and Jim Arden all contributed 80s.

Harper will get another crack at Lake County on Oct. 22 in the DuPage Classic.

Harper's netters point to weekend action

Harper tennis coach Martha Bolt is looking forward to the Illinois Community College Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (ICCIAW) tournament this weekend at Waubonsee.

"I think we have a good chance of placing," Bolt said. "This team is very unpredictable but I think they'll do a good job."

Harper lost a 6-3 dual meet decision to Wheaton College, a four-year school, Tuesday.

Sandy Norton took a point for the Hawks at No. 3 singles and Sharon Kirkwood won her No. 5 singles match.

The Hawks No. 3 doubles team of Barb Jacobi and Denise Richards won their third straight match since teaming together.

ADULT FLAG FOOTBALL
Des Plaines

1st National 6, Wild Bunch 0

A hard fought game which saw a scoreless tie until the final seconds of the game. It was 1st National's first win. The final play was a desperation pass deflected by the defense into the hands of the offensive receiver.

Boomer's Tap 20, Talcott Pharmacy 12

Boomer's bounced back with their second victory. An interception by Mike Thompson stopped a key drive by Talcott. Dolphin had a punt return which resulted in a score and Jim Thompson was on the receiving end of a Cook pass for a touchdown.

Dean's Concrete 18, Romano's 6

The best game so far this season saw two undefeated teams battle it out. All three scores for Dean's were set up by long pass receptions from Ackermann. Romano's ground game fell short to Dean's quick defense.

Junior League
Falcons 8, Packers 6
The Falcons gained sole possession of second place with a victory over the Packers. The Pack scored first on a long pass to J. Schurr, but failed to make the extra points. On good running by D. Dublinski (60 yards gained) and a strong defense, the Packers kept control of the game until the last four minutes. With fourth and a yard on their own 36 yard line, the Falcons elected to punt, and Scott Michalik booted the ball inside the Packer 10. After a Packer fumble, recovered by Falcon end Rod Seligmann, Terry Clerkin scored both the touchdown and extra points on sweeps led by Chris Mahon and Mike Zablotny.
Colts 34, Bears 8
Doug Brown scored four touchdowns as the League-leading Colts dominated the Bears. Brown's touchdowns were made on runs of 12, 19, 2 and 21 yards. David Kangas scored the other Colt touchdown o a 13-yard. run. Helping this offensive effort were Colts' Eric Schmidt, who intercepted a Bear pass; David King, who blocked a punt; and Tony Mirarelli, Chip Michel, Joe Finnegan and Curt Petersen, who played outstanding defense. The Bears' lone touchdown was made by Tom Scanlon on a 40-yard run. Scanlon also ran for the conversion. LaBeau of the Bears had 10 tackles.
Cowboys 46, Cardinals 14
A powerful Cowboy team put on an offensive display which netted 208 yards total offense, including six touchdowns and five two-point conversions. Dave Matt caught an 18-yard touchdown pass and ran for one conversion. Larry Gorey caught two passes for 24 yards, including one spectacular diving catch. Quarterback Pete Lydon carried the ball for two conversions, and completed three of five passes, one for a touchdown. On defense, Lydon ripped a pass from a Cardinal receiver and raced 15 yards for the final Cowboy touchdown. Defensive standouts were Kevin Hetherington, Dave Kubacki and John Amtmann. The Cardinals came to life in the fourth quarter when defensive back Jack Busby made a beautiful interception and ran 25 yards for a touchdown. Minutes later, Dan Langner swept right end for another Cardinal score. Bill Thompson added two more points on the conversion.

Marty Dooley, Brian Sullivan and Paul Paynter scored the conversions. Dan Johnson led the defense with a fumble recovery while Paynter intercepted a pass to stop an Eagle drive. Russ Sharpe, Pat Denton and Pat Fillipelli were strong on defense.
Saints 32, Vikings 14
The league-leading Saints were just too much for the Vikings, and continued their unbeaten streak at four games. The first half saw quarterback Tom Sanders throw touchdown passes of 50 and 58 yards to Pete Walsh and Lance Pearson, the latter coming with only 10 seconds left in the half. In between, Jay Devero scored the second Saint touchdown on a 53 yard gallop behind the blocking of Dave Mahon, Paul Elchelman and Steve Topczewski. Big Saint tackle Brad Rosley replaced Devero at fullback and promptly romped 35 yards for the fourth Saint score. Greg Lindskoog and Bill Oakley led the blocking. Jim Allshie returned a kickoff 65 yards for the final Saint touchdown. The Saints failed to convert the extra points four out of five times, with only Devero scoring in the first quarter. Dave Woods, Dave Ischinger, Mike Bonogura and Tom Weber were outstanding on defense. In the fourth quarter, Viking quarterback Kirkpatrick completed a 35-yard pass to set up Kip Sharp's touchdown run. Later, Casicaro scored on a six-yard sweep. Defensive standouts were Dave Heinrich, Steve Bretl and Myles Naughton.
Browns 40, Steelers 8

Seal Ric Berens scored a rare four. Bill Hull once, Matt Kanan starred on offense and Jerry Carkeek on defense. 'Cuda tallymen were Christopher Deutschmann and Randy Moore.
Dolphins 4, Marlins 0
Billy Brewer was the most improved Marlin, but the Dolphins came out on top on goals by Dan Hibner (2), Dan Jacobson, and Dave Raby; assists by Dale Suslick (2) and Dave Walocha; great midfield play by Steve Chope and Raby, great offensive play by Hibner; and a shutout for Louis Schager.
Sting Rays 2, Sharks 2
This was a hard-fought, all-out effort by everyone as Frankie Houlihan scored twice for the Rays, and the Sharks evened it up with goals by Matt May and Eric Juhl.
Juniors
Alley Cats 4, Jaguars 4
The Cats held the Jaguars to their second tie of the season on two goals each by Bruce Peterson and Tom Dahlborn. The Jaguars had a hat-trick from Mark Anderson, single by Jimmy Bock, super hustle by Jimmy Proce, Dan Schager, Mike Zilligen and Greg Jackowski and superior fullbacking by Mark Roe.
Cheetahs 4, Cougars 1
The Cheetahs won on a hat trick by Mike Polizzi, a single by Eric Eads, and outstanding defense by Paul Exell and Kirk Elliot. The Cougar goal was by John Miller, assisted by Craig Hartman.
Panthers 4, Lions 1
The Panthers had two unassisted goals (by Dan Schuman and Bob Lefevre), two assisted (Bill Hibner from Scott Padgett and Mike Swanson from Mike Stevens), and excellent work in the nets by Brad Rojas. Jamie Trzeciak made the Lion score.
Pumas 1, Bobcats 0
Puma goalie Robert Sunderlin took Oak Park's third shutout of the day as Joe Berktold became the only player to break through the excellent defenders of either team.
Tigers 4, Wildcats 1
Wildcats Matt Brehm, Andrew Chu, and Keith Wald helped to hold down the opposition score, but Dean Herndon was the only Cat to break through the stubborn defense of Tiger center fullback Mark Howell. Mike Donahoe led the Gold to victory with two tallies and an assist, followed by Tim Updike with two scores, and Gene Carr and Mike Betka with an assist each.
Intermediates
Hawks 5, Blue Jays 2
The Hawks pounced on the Jays in a hard fought game with two goals and two assists by Pete Kouzes, one tally each by Robert Rolnik, Jim Kott and Ken Mueller; one assist each by Brian Reed, Tom Chernesky, and Mark Hogan; and fine defense by fullbacks Don Miller, Hogan and Myron Wolf. The Jay scorers were Rick Brandt and Ted Brunk, and their hardest-working players were Brad Burgess and Brian Tow.
Swifts 3, Roadrunners 2
David Graveline made all three Swift goals with strong support from Robert Eads, Jeff Magnusson, Mike Hogan, and Patrick Murphy. Both Runner goals were by Brett Hartman on assists by Bill Murphy and Gary Szydlo.
Cardinals 3, Orioles 1
The Oriole goal was by Michael Deutschmann, and the Card goals were by Tom Seeley, Tom Mueller, and Clark Lush.
Turkeys 4, Eagles 3
The Ruzbasans led the Turkeys with one goal for Kevin and one for Rick. They teamed up with two more goals by John McDaniel and Ron Reiter and good play by Brennan Gourdie and Jeff Herndon. The Eagles were breathing right down their necks with goals by Kevin Barrett (2) and David Eck, and fine defense by Carl Privett, Steve Smith, and John Yarwood.
Flickers 3, Condors 0
John Prima put in a stellar performance for the Condors, but he was overwhelmed by the Flicker scorers, Tom Sullivan, Brad Lawrenz and Ralph Ruppel; and their best players of the day, Hans Hofman, George Kelly, Marc Andre, Bo Bergstrom, and shutout goalie, Dan Diewald.
Seniors
Impalas 12, Gazelles 5
The Impalas made a dozen; three by Andy Deutschmann, two by Dave Castillo, George Stillwell, and Bob Wegener, and one each by Dave Moller, Bill Dahlborn, and Mike Gellinger. The Gazelles managed five with two by Jeff Ernst and one each by Tim Ryan, Steve Barr, and Jim Johnson.
Mustangs 4, Rams 2
The Mustangs ran over the Rams on a spectacular four goals by Brian McLean — on two assists by Jeff Abrahamson and one each by Ed Lange and Craig Harding and fine defense by Tim Hess, Joe Petykowski, and Lange. Both Ram goals were by Jay Babler.
Beavers 3, Bears 2
The Beavers knocked in a win on goals by Tom Seiter Jim Pejchl and Kevin Schwarz, outstanding defense by halfback Jacques Mobille and fullbacks Dave McDonald and Elias Koutas and an aggressive showing by Ross Robertson on the front line. Jim Rennie and Mark McLean scored for the Bears.

TRAVELING TEAMS
Celtic Midgets 4, HF United 1
Goals by Erik BoHansen (assisted by Bill Murphy), Chis Abbick, Tom Mueller (assisted by Gary Szydlo) and Rich Drozd (from a corner kick dropped in by Pete Kouzes) plus good play by Murphy and Jim Joll kept the Celtic undefeated in National League play.

Mary Laser captures three titles

PLUTO-ANDANTINO, one of the famous Imperial Lipizzan Stallions appearing in the "Holiday with Horses" show at the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, executes the difficult and spectacular "Capriole." This is one of the maneuvers the gifted breed of horses will perform here Oct. 21-24.

Mary Laser won three division championships to take individual honors in the recently completed Arlington Tennis Club Tournament, while Harry Laser, John Wentworth and Warren Seiler won two division crowns each.

The annual club tournament attracted 347 entries in 20 divisions. It was the final event of the outdoor season for the club, which held 10 weekend tournaments, participated in the North and West Suburban Tennis League, and co-sponsored the Paddock Tennis Tournament on Labor Day weekend.

Mary Laser won club championships in the Junior Vets and Vets singles divisions and it the Junior Vets doubles, where she teamed with Joan Schaefer to beat Jody Kvnast and Val Burns. She beat Jody Kynast in the Junior Vets finals and won over Helen Kohutko in the Vets finals.

Harry Laser won the Junior Vets singles over Larry Brown, and bested John Clark to win the Vets singles in men's competition.

Wentworth's double victory came in the B division singles, where he beat Clare Feiereisel, and in the B division doubles, where he teamed with Al Siles to beat Errol Unikel and Dave Bone.

Seiler's two championships were in the Seniors singles, over Paul Dean, and the Seniors doubles, where he joined with Fred Ruprecht to beat Reuben Conrad and Ken Schaller.

Other division champions and runners-up were:

Tom Jur, who beat Bill Lange, in the A divison singles.

Steve Smith, over Jim Barr, in C division singles.

Bill Baumann and Bill Lange, over Larry Smith and Gary Brodnan, in A division doubles.

Dick Leslie and Bob Harrald over John Fish and Jay Fish, in C division doubles.

Lothar Piestrup and Dick Adashek over John Rice and Ted Pristash, in Junior Vets doubles.

John Clark and Clare Feiereisel over Dave Bone and Paul Dean, in Vets doubles.

Edie Deshida over Carol Bratton, in A division singles.

Val Burns over Dotty Salski, in B division singles

Yolanda Farinella and Carol Drake over Mary DeSimone and Nancy Cunningham, in B division doubles.

The club is a nonprofit organization open to all area residents for social and competitive tennis. It will sponsor indoor winter play at Hersey High School and River Trails Tennis Club.

Mike Hagen and Bill Madden combined for a par 72 at Naperville's two-ball invitational golf tourney, leading Conant to sixth place finish at the 24-team meet.

Forest View, tied for second while Hersey placed 15th at the Springbrook Country Club-hosted meet. At Rockford, Rolling Meadows tied for sixth in an 11-team tournament.

Jim Moran and Joe Carcerano paced the Falcon entry at Naperville, teaming up for a 73 total. Forest View finished at 228, knotting with York and West Aurora while Barrington took championship honors at 217 and Homewood-Flossmoor forged a 227.

Conant had 220. Hersey finished at 239, headed up by a 77 that was the joint handiwork of Mark Miesfeldt and Tim Rich.

Cougars Randy Severinsen and Mark Stilin and Falcons Mike Carroll and Don DeGrande hooked up for 77s. Tom Martindale and Chris Wilk of Forest View posted a 78.

DeKalb came up with a 315 to annex the team trophy at a Rockford tourney. With athletics eliminated from public schools there this year, Boylan assumed hosting duties and placed just ahead with 338 of the 340 the Mustangs and Rochelle carded to tie for sixth.

For Meadows, Brett Burkhardt turned in an 84, Ken Miller and Rich Vojtsek had 85s and Scott Sander an 86 over the Elliot Park course in Rockford.

Fremd finishes second in golf

Rounds of 84 by Ron Stanford and Don Sullivan helped pace Fremd to a second place finish among 21 teams entered in the Lake Forest frosh-soph invitational golf tournament.

The hosting Scouts captured first place honors at 320. Jim Bruning added an 86 to the Viking cause and Doug Johnson contributed an 87 to give Fremd a 337 for the runnerup position.

A MOTHER'S TOUCH, a baby's response. Even the tiniest infant matures faster with the love and interest of a parent. In the past premature children were separated from their parents for weeks or months before leaving the hospitals. Today mothers and fathers of preemie babies are allowed into some high risk nurseries to help care for their infants and strengthen the bond of love.

Preemies need their mothers' touch

by BARBARA LADD

Not all mothers-to-be spend the last few weeks before their delivery dates in a flurry of baby showers and shopping sprees. Nor do all cuddle their newborns as they are wheeled out of the hospital.

Some women, like Tina Anthony and Renee Franks, unexpectedly give birth to their babies weeks or months before they are due and when these mothers leave the hospital, mailing birth announcements isn't necessarily on their agenda.

Both Tina, Palatine, and Renee, Highland Park, expected to give birth this month. Instead they found themselves in labor last summer.

Tina's daughter was born eight weeks early weighing three pounds eight ounces; Renee's triplets were 11 weeks premature and all weighed about two pounds. Only two of the triplets survived and one just went home last week.

All of the babies were admitted to Lutheran General's high-risk nursery where they were placed in incubators and constantly monitored.

"THE DOCTORS WOULDN'T give us any odds," said Tina, whose daughter, Kelly, was sent home recently. "They just said they would take as good of care of her as possible, and they don't beat around the bush when things aren't going so well either."

Tina's experience wasn't unique; approximately one of every 12 babies born is a high-risk infant. But the situation wasn't as bad as Tina and her husband, Tim, anticipated.

They expected the nursery to be sterile, cold and extemely formal. Instead they found a warm, cheerful atmosphere, bright colors and comfortable rocking chairs to sit in as they held their baby. They were allowed into the nursery anytime they wished to see, touch or hold Kelly.

"Parents are always surprised when we strongly encourage them to come into the nursery and help care for their babies," said Dr. Henry Mangurten, director of the high-risk nursery. "Our idea is to make parents a part of the picture. We invite them in to do what they can. There is no baby a parent can't at least touch."

But that wasn't always the case.

Fifty years ago, before antibiotics, even normal newborns died of infections. Therefore, the policy for premature babies was "hands off," said Dr. Mangurten.

THE INFANTS WERE placed in submarine-type iron cribs and fed with eye-droppers. Parents weren't allowed even to look at their children. Most of the premature babies died anyway.

Today, a three-pound baby has an 80 to 90 per cent chance of survival, said Dr. Candace Caldwell. A neonatologist like Dr. Mangurten, she is assistant director of Lutheran General's high-risk nursery where most area high-risk infants are sent.

"For the past eight or 10 years, medical literature has supported allowing parents in to see their children," said Dr. Caldwell.

Some studies indicate babies mature faster with outside stimuli; others show that disordered sleep patterns may result from the monotonous environment of "hands-off" incubators.

"Also, although maternal instinct in humans is not like that in cats and dogs whose offspring have to be licked within an hour after birth, it's important for the mother to touch her baby at least within the first few days to establish a bond," the doctor said.

The Anthonys and the Frankes agree that it is emotionally necessary to have contact with their babies.

"YOU GO THROUGH six months of throwing up and getting fat because you used to be pregnant with a child," said Renee, who held her son, Matthew, the day after delivery. "Then when you leave the hospital, you go home with no one."

"It is depressing to have a premature baby," Tina concurred. "It's like I didn't even have her after I got home. You have a mother's instinct, but no baby."

The babies themselves don't look anything like those pictured on diaper boxes or in family albums.

"One mother told me her child looked like a little wet rat," said Dr. Caldwell. And Kelly's father, Tim, described preemies as "skeletons covered with skin."

"If a woman were to deliver a two-pound baby and not see or touch him for three months, she might not be attracted to her baby — not unless she progressed with her child." said Dr. Mangurten. "When she can remember how her child looked at two pounds, then she thinks he or she is beautiful at four (pounds)."

That feeling of attraction to the child is extremely important in later years, the doctors pointed out.

"THERE HAVE BEEN a number of studies done on premature children who were separated from their mothers for weeks or months (immediately after being born). And these children experienced a higher degree of child battering and abuse," said Dr. Caldwell.

Still, not all hospitals allow parents or unauthorized personnel into their high-risk nurseries. The major concern is infection, said Dr. Mangurten.

"But today we know how viruses are spread and we know how to treat them," he said. "Anyway, we ask parents to wash their hands and put on gowns. They're much more alert than we are to infection. We've never had a problem with a parent saying he was healthy when he really was sick."

Tradition also plays a large part in the treatment of premature infants and their parents, he said. Besides keeping a mother and father away from their baby, some obstetricians still administer shots to prevent the woman from nursing her child.

One mother recalls with bitterness her discovery, three days after giving birth to a premature infant, that she wouldn't be able to nurse her baby.

"I hadn't been asked," she complained six years later. "I wasn't even told."

DRS. MANGURTEN AND Caldwell dispute this practice and encourage women who want to breastfeed their babies. These women make arrangements through their hometown hospitals or Lutheran General to give their milk, so the nursery can have it for bottle or whatever kind of feeding her baby needs, said Dr. Mangurten.

"In this way the mother can feel she is making a positive benefit and is expediting her baby's health," he said. "It is still common practice for OB's (obstetricians) to dry up a (preemie's) mother's milk. But if the woman makes her wishes known, some doctors are willing to arrange it."

Today most doctors are also willing to allow the mother to see her premature infant before the baby is transported to the high-risk nursery. And the neonatologists at Lutheran General are especially willing to help parents, as well as their patients, through the difficult weeks or months after delivery.

They personally telephone the mothers who are recovering at other hospitals; a 24-hour telephone service allows parents to be in contact with their child's condition anytime they want; the nusery is open to parents at all times.

"We still don't allow grandparents in the nursery, although they are very supportive and valuable in the total family picture. We just don't have the space," explained Dr. Mangurten. "Most parents come to the nursery between 8 and 10 p.m. and there is just no room for all of them, let alone the grandparents."

THE NURSERY HAS facilities for about 20 high-risk infants — more than double the capacity in 1970. About 300 high-risk infants are admitted to Lutheran General each year and less than 10 per cent die, said Dr. Mangurten. The average stay is five weks.

"Everyone was so worried," said Renee Franks as she prepared to take Matthew home two months after delivery. "No one sends cards or calls to see how they are doing. No one knows how to react."

"We were sure scared," her husband added as he rocked his daughter, Tammy, who was still connected to a heart monitor. "We didn't know what was going to happen."

But the Frankes both agree that things would have been much worse had they been separated from their babies and the emotional support of the doctors and nurses.

"They kept explaining what was going on and what to expect," said Renee. "For the longest time I didn't even want to go out and buy another bed or set anything up. Now I just want both of the twins home."

LITTLE KELLY ANTHONY weighs a whopping four and a half pounds now and her mother, Tina, thinks she's fat. Tina remembers when her daughter tipped the scales at only a bit over three pounds. Kelly, born two months prematurely, spent several weeks in an incubator before going home.

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Can low-cholesterol diet help deafness?

I have had Meniere's disease for 26 years. The hearing in my right ear deteriorated first. After about 15 years my left ear started to go.

I no longer have the serious vertigo I had the first 15 years, only occasional slight dizziness, particularly when I roll over in bed, rarely when I am upright.

I wear hearing aids on both ears. The sound distortion, however, is becoming more serious and I am concerned about being able to continue working which requires talking to others and on the phone.

Last year I heard about a doctor who had some success restoring hearing in Meniere's patients using a low cholesterol diet.

My other health is fine. I am 54 and weigh 130 pounds and am 5 feet 2. I would certainly try a diet if it would help my hearing. Thank you for any advice you can give.

Your case is unusual because it involves both ears and began at such an early age. Meniere's disease more often begins in middle life.

For the benefit of other readers the disease is characterized by dizziness (vertigo) that makes a person have a sensation of motion, loss of hearing and ringing or buzzing in the ears. Unless there is an associated hearing loss, it is not true Meniere's disease.

A person with this disease may feel fine except during attacks. The attacks may be associated with nausea and rarely vomiting, somewhat like motion sickness. During the attack the eyes may be seen to move back and forth in jerky movements called nystagmus.

As the hearing is lost, dizziness disappears as it has in your case. Hearing loss is progressive so the dizziness sensation seems to burn itself out in time. The attacks are treated with medicines used to treat motion sickness.

The cause of the disease is unknown. Some authorities think it is caused by an accumulation of excess fluid in the delicate balance apparatus inside the ear. These canals are somewhat like a carpenter's level and send signals to the brain about the position of the head. When they are inflamed or accumulate fluid or are otherwise damaged, they send false information to the brain, just as a faulty carpenter's level could give misinformation. The brain then is confused, causing sensations of motion.

YOU CAN HAVE the sensation of dizziness or vertigo from other medical problems, including inflammation resulting from a recent viral respiratory infection, and, of course, some people get it from motion sickness.

A diet that restricts salt is used in some patients with Meniere's disease to try to prevent any accumulation of fluid in the balance canals. And circulation can be a factor. I am doubtful that you will get much benefit from a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, but it is worth trying. I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Fatty cholesterol deposits can affect any arteries and impair circulation. Some people do get improvement in hearing and ear function if they are able to reverse these circulation problems so you might as well try it.

Toilet bowl, bathtub require different care

Dear Dorothy: Is it true that one has to be more careful in caring for a porcelain enamel bathtub than the matching toilet in the same bathroom? I've always thought they were the same material. — Beth Baumann

Oh, no. Toilet bowls are made of vitreous china which is ceramic throughout, while porcelain enamel is applied to metal-based tubs. The vitreous china toilet bowl is supposed to be immune to acid attack and yet may be ruined by the improper use of the powerful products we use today. A combination of chlorine bleach and steel wool, for example, can do unbelievable damage to even the best fired china bowl. The porcelain tubs are ever so much more sensitive and require only recommended cleaners.

Dear Dorothy: I got interrupted ironing a load of sprinkled clothes and couldn't get back to the task for a couple of days. It startled me to discover that mildew had started to form. Is this a standard risk? — Helen Wickenberg

Sure. The thing to do in situations like this is to put all the clothes in a bag and stuff it into the refrigerator. One plus is that the cothes are then easier to iron.

Dear Dorothy: The cross-talk among you folks about chuck draws me into the discussion. I started with a plus since my husband likes chuck. The center of the chuck, called "chicken steak," is the part that does best broiled, but it has to be well-marbled. It's the part next to the rib roast. I sprinkle meat tenderizer on both sides, let stand 30 mintues before the broiling. — Joyce Sandwell.

by Mary B. Good

If you throw away money by killing off houseplants, start raising houseplants from the things you throw away!

Like avocado pits, these plants are enjoying a big revival now. For example, gardeners on both coasts, the nation's trendsetters, have thrown avocado pit growers' contests to raise money for charity (and to buy more avocados).

Your garden club or woman's group could to the same, planning such appropriate contest categories as oldest plant, tallest, largest-leaved plant, plant growing in strangest shape, plant with most personality, or plant looking most like Cher Bono.

BUT WHETHER you plant to grow Miss Avocado or plan to keep it sequestered from the adoring outside world, you'll need to know what to do with the pit. Avocados are a cinch to grow.

First order of business is to gently pull away the outer layer of loose skin covering the pit, after the fruit has been consumed. Then plunge three toothpicks into the pit — around its mid-section — and suspend it in a drinking glass of room temperature water. The broadest end of the pit, the root end, goes down, just like an egg resting in an egg cup. The avocado pit should sit so that the water reaches about half an inch up the bottom of the pit.

The incubating avocado prefers a warm spot, but not in direct sunlight at this point. In two to six weeks' time, a little greenie should start sprouting — the stem.

EVERY ONCE in a while, a bad pit shows up. If the pit doesn't sprout within two months, toss the pit and try again. The pit most likely to grow is the one exhumed from the ripest avocado. Chances are the pit that doesn't sprout within a reasonable time was an immature pit from an underripe fruit and probably won't sprout if you wait until kingdom come. I can't stand to wait two months and not have anything happen, so I start a half dozen at a time. Something's bound to sprout this way, and it gives me a chance to try different experiments for faster sprouting.

Occasionally, a pit grower comes across a split pit. This one separates into two pieces when you're peeling the avocado. This one is a reject. Nutritionally, a pit needs both its halves to do its thing.

BUT BACK TO the sprouting. Some people start their plants directly in soil for faster sprouts. One grower, who is very impatient, suggests speed rooting by making a narrow incision starting halfway down the pit and around the middle, stopping the operation halfway up the other side.

Another "surgeon" hacks off the top quarter-inch of the pit, being careful not to cut the spot where the stem sprouts, sort of like coring an apple.

For those who start their pit in water, it's time to transplant to a six-inch pot when the stem has leafed out and roots have developed. (Avocados like a larger pot, but not too large.) A clay pot is best, with broken crockery over the drainage hole and a mixture of one part sand to three parts of potting soil. Avocados like to have two-thirds of their pits sticking out of the soil, not the whole pit completely buried. Some growers plant a grapefruit seed in with the avocado at this point, since the two are terrific companion plants which aid each other's growth. The grapefruit further offers the avocado a pressure on its roots that the avocado needs to grow.

ONCE IN soil, the avocado will now welcome several hours of sunlight a day. If it doesn't get enough light, the leaves will elongate and turn pale; too dry and the leaf edges will get brown and wrinkled.

Some people don't like the looks of a spindly avocado, so to force it to branch out, cut the plant back to half size when it reaches a height of six or seven inches tall. Don't be afraid of killing it — just whack off the top half and before long, two branches will form just below the incision.

Don't expect an avocado plant grown indoors to produce fruit. It won't. Personally, I don't care, but because I can't stand the taste of avocados — I'm only in it for the pits!

EQUAL HOUSING LENDER

Kathy Jean Stewart—Michael Gillig

Mr. and Mrs. Michael L. Gillig

For her Sept. 4 wedding, Kathy Jean Stewart of Mount Prospect wore her mother's bridal gown as "something old" and the groom's mother's pearls as "something borrowed."

The dress was of white satin with a seven-foot train and a neckline embroidered in seed pearls. With it Kathy wore a crown of seed pearls and a lace-edged veil and carried white and peach carnations, peach roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

She became the bride of Michael Lee Gillig in a 4 p.m. ceremony in St. Raymond Catholic Church. Michael is the son of Mrs. Terrence Lehman of Buffalo Grove and the late Clarence Gillig. Kathy's parents are the Duane D. Stewarts.

Her attendants included Patricia Hitzeman, Arlington Heights, as maid of honor; her two sisters, Connie of Itasca and Sheri Baldwin of Los Angeles, and Christine Schmitt, Tampa, Fla., as bridesmaids; Kristine Walsh, Mount Prospect, and Carine Ritchie, the groom's niece from Rolling Meadows, as flower girls.

THE ATTENDANTS were gowned in peach and light blue print with matching floor-length ruffled capes. Thier bouquets were of peach and blue carnations centered with peach roses.

Best man was Gary Hubacek, Mount Prospect. Ushers were John Bueter, Palatine and Thomas Buchanan and Steve Bagneschi, Arlington Heights; and the groom's nephew, Anthony Gillig, Rolling Meadows, was ring-bearer.

A buffet reception followed at Arlington Heights Elks Club and after a short honeymoon at Lake Lawn Lodge, the couple are living in Palatine.

A graduate of Prospect High, Kathy works in an Arlington Heights doctors' office and Michael is an Arlington High graduate working for Standard Die Mold, Rosemont.

EASY YET ELEGANT ENTERTAINING

While lazy summer days have ended for another year, the carefree entertaining so characteristic of the warmer weather need not fade. The crisp, cool days of fall and winter call for more elegant entertaining, but it's easy to combine the ease of summer entertaining with the elegance of the new season.

Accompaniments, simple to make from basic ingredients found on your cabinet shelves, complement the easy-to-do rotisserie duckling. Rice Pilaf combines packaged rice, and flavorful herbs and chicken broth, tossed with shredded Monterey Jack cheese.

Frosty Salad Toss, using cling peach slices, spinach, Romaine and Bibb lettuce, becomes even frostier when served with refreshing, creamy blue cheese dressing.

A quick variation of the traditional fruit cobbler, using fruit cocktail topped with quick biscuits, makes an elegant dessert. Best of all, these delicious dishes can be prepared while the duckling turns a lovely golden brown.

Ducklings, readily available in supermarket freezers, require little active preparation time, as basting is unnecessary. Canned cling peaches and fruit cocktail remain in plentiful supply, available in a variety of economical sizes.

With such convenience at hand, how could elegance be any easier.

ROTISSERIE DUCKLING

- 1 (4 to 6 pound) duckling, defrosted
- 1½ tablespoons seasoned salt
- 1½ teaspoons rosemary leaves crushed
- 1½ teaspoons ground thyme
- Dash pepper
- 6 springs parsley
- 1 onion, cut in half

Preheat open hearth broiler/rotisserie. Mix together salt, thyme, rosemary and pepper. Sprinkle half of mixture in duckling cavity, then add parsley and onion. Insert spit through duckling so that both pronged forks are tightly inserted; tighten screws. Balance duckling on spit, tie legs together and make sure string holds neck firmly to back and wings to body. Place spit on spit supports. Adjust supports so duckling is as close as possible to heating element without touching it. Attach motor and turn on. Rub remaining salt mixture over skin of duckling. Roast about 2½ hours or until drumstick is fork-tender. Makes 4 servings.

Note: To cook 2 (3½ to 4 pounds) ducklings double ingredients. Place ducklings on spit so legs of first duckling overlap onto breast of second duckling and vice versa. The ducklings can be no longer than 12 inches. Tie them to spit securely. Cook 2½ to 3 hours or until done. The last 15 to 30 minutes of cooking, prick duckling around thighs to make sure all drippings have been released. Makes 8 servings.

ROAST DUCKLING

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Rub duck with garlic or bacon to help lock in the bird's original juices. Season as for Rotisserie Duckling. Upon placing the duck in the oven, reduce heat at once to 350 degrees. Cook until tender, allowing about 20 minutes to the pound.

RICE PILAF

- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1 large onion, chopped
- ½ pound mushrooms, sliced, or 1 can (8 ounce) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 cup uncooked rice, not instant
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 large tomato, chopped
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese

In 10½ inch fry pan, melt 4 tablespoons of the butter over medium heat. Saute onion and mushrooms for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove onion and mushroom mixture to bowl. To fry pan add remaining 2 tablespoons butter and melt over medium heat. Add rice and cook until lightly browned, stirring occasionally, 5 to 10 minutes. Add onion mixture, chicken broth and salt; continue cooking, covered, for 12 minutes. Remove cover; stir in tomato, green pepper and cheese and cook about 10 minutes longer or until rice is tender. Makes 8 servings.

FROSTY SALAD TOSS

- 1 can (29 ounce) cling peach slices
- 1 bunch (about 1 pound) spinach
- 1 head Romaine lettuce
- 2 heads Bibb or butter lettuce
- Frosty Salad Dressing

Drain peach slices, saving syrup. Refrigerate. Wash spinach leaves and remove from stems. Wash lettuce and tear into bite size pieces. Refrigerate until serving time, then toss salad greens and peach slices with Frosty Salad Dressing in chilled bowl. Makes 8 servings.

FROSTY SALAD DRESSING

- ½ pint dairy sour cream
- ⅓ cup blue cheese
- 1 tablespoon crumbled bacon bits
- 4 tablespoons salad oil
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ cup peach syrup

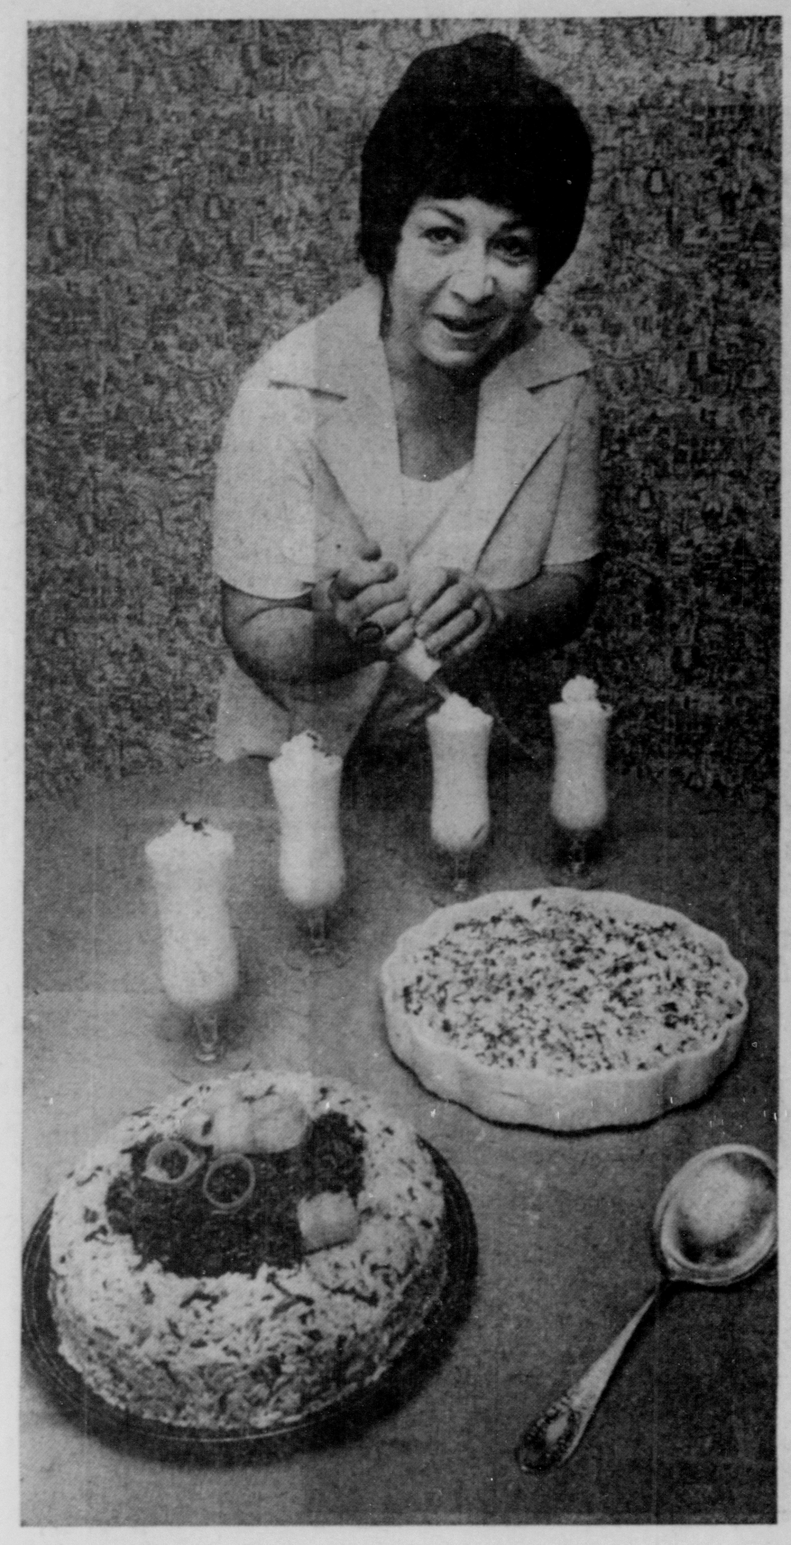
QUICKIE FRUIT COBBLER

- 1 can (30 ounce) fruit cocktail
- ½ cup brown sugar, packed
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 12 unbaked biscuits
- Sour cream
- Melted butter
- Whipped cream

Drain fruit cocktail syrup into saucepan. Add brown sugar, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; bring to boil. Combine cornstarch with water; stir into boiling syrup with lemon juice. Cook, stirring until thickened; add fruit cocktail. Heat through. Cut 12 biscuits from prepared biscuit mix using sour cream in place of milk. Turn fruit cocktail mixture into 9 inch baking pan. Dip biscuits in melted butter and place on top of fruit mixture. Bake in 425 degree oven 12 to 15 minutes until biscuits are browned. Serve with whipped cream.
Makes 6 to 8 servings.

She caters to birthdays and banquets



EVEN THE MOST elegant-looking dishes can be simple to make, according to Barbara Bergren, Prospect Heights. She recommends Creme de Cacao Parfait, Spinach Souffle and Rice Ring for novice cooks to fix for company dinners.

by LOIS SEILER

So many friends praised her culinary ability that before she knew it, Barbara Bergren, Prospect Heights, was in the catering business.

Many of her cooking accomplishments resulted from necessity, she said. And so it was with the first wedding cake she baked. Books showed her how to decorate the three-tiered "from scratch" cake. It was such a success people began to ask her to make novelty cakes for festive occasions.

One thing led to another, and Barbara's reputation as a good cook and baker spread. She now makes everything from hors d'oeuvres and tea sandwiches to complete dinners and, of course, wedding cakes. She caters small dinner parties and receptions for as many as a hundred people.

"I'VE HAD MANY failures," Barbara candidly admits, "but I believe that if you fail once, you go back and try again."

She confides that her major interest in life, other than her family, is cooking. Her grandmother was her biggest inspiration; as a child Barbara spent hours watching her cook. By 18, Barbara was giving dinner parties.

Without any professional training, she took a job as a cook in an executive dining room for a company in Northbrook.

"This was one of the most rewarding things I've ever done," Barbara said. "It was great to get paid for something you enjoy."

However, Barbara didn't want to leave her children alone during the summer months, and resigned from the routine of company banquets and executive luncheons in favor of catering.

BARBARA'S HUSBAND, Don, is an asset to her culinary endeavors since he will try anything once. Her daughter and son often help with the food preparation for the catering jobs. And each year her children can count on new and unusual birthday cakes, since Barbara never makes the same cake twice.

"Once I've mastered something, I want to go on to something else," she said.

She likes to try all types of ethnic dishes, cans all kinds of foods and loves to entertain.

"Cooking is an ego trip for me," she said. "And I enjoy all of the compliments. It's like being an entertainer and getting applause."

The recipes she chose to share with readers are less complicated than many she makes, since Barbara prefers a challenge and wants to cook dishes people do not like to make for themselves.

THE ENTREE SHE suggests is Saucy Pork Chops. For this, she browns thick-sliced chops, preferably on a charcoal grill. Then she bakes them in a mixture of catsup, brown and white sugars and Worcestershire sauce.

"This is a quick way of making barbecue sauce," Barbara said. In addition to keeping the chops moist, the sauce imparts a savory sweet-sour flavor to the meat.

As accompaniments she suggests a spinach souffle and a rice ring.

The souffle is a take-off on a Greek recipe, and Barbara added several of her own ingredients. The secret to its success is cottage cheese, although two other cheeses (Barbara prefers Swiss and Cheddar) contribute to its flavor.

This is not the type of souffle that rises and then falls. It just gets puffy and light, and even leftovers are tempting and tasty the next day. High in protein, this souffle is good for banquets, as the entree for luncheons with a fresh tomato salad, or also for stuffing crepes.

BARBARA'S RICE RING is made with both white and wild rices seasoned with butter and bouillon. It is dressed up with a bed of parsley and carrot curls arranged in the center of the ring.

With this she serves miniature loaves of French bread, a light salad, and, for dessert, creme de cacao parfait.

The parfait is very light, and can be prepared a day ahead.

"You can substitute instant coffee for creme de cacao or use other liqueurs such as Grand Marnier," Barbara said. "Fruits may even be layered in between. The variations end with your imagination."

She served this pretty dessert with homemade butter cookies.

While cooking is her number one interest, Barbara is also an accomplished seamstress and enjoys all types of creative needlework. She has taken courses in adult evening school ranging from art and piano to upholstering and languages. She also serves as a troop organizer for the Girl Scouts and is secretary for St. Alphonsus religious classes for children attending public school.

SAUCY PORK CHOPS

Combine catsup, Worcestershire sauce and sugars in a 9 by 13-inch baking dish. Place browned chops in sauce, turning to coat both sides. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 1 to 1½ hours. The last 15 minutes of baking, place a thin lemon slice on top of each chop. Serves 4 to 6.

¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 beaten eggs
1 carton (8 ounces) small curd cottage cheese
½ pound shredded cheeses (white and yellow, such as Cheddar and Swiss)

Melt butter in skillet. Add onion and garlic and saute until transparent but not brown. Add flour and salt to make a roux.

Into a 2-quart casserole, place the frying pan ingredients, the spinach, eggs and cheeses and blend well. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes or until set in the center. Let stand at least five minutes before serving. Serves 6 to 8.

RICE RING

1¼ cups regular converted white rice
½ cup wild rice
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon instant chicken bouillon
Parsley
Carrot curls

Add salt to water and cook rices according to package directions. When done, drain off any excess liquid and combine both rices while hot. Add butter and bouillon and pack into a buttered, 6-cup ring mold. Pack to top. Dot with additional 2 to 3 teaspoons butter. Let stand until ready to serve. Invert onto serving plate and fill with parsley sprigs and carrot curls. Serves 6.

CREME DE CACAO PARFAIT

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup granulated sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 to 3 tablespoons creme de cacao
1¼ cups milk
2 large eggs, separated
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ pint whipping cream, whipped

Mix gelatin, ¼ cup sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Beat egg yolks and milk together and add to gelatin mixture. Cook over boiling water until gelatin is dissolved, about five minutes. Remove from heat and add vanilla and creme de cacao. Chill until thick, about the consistency of soft ice cream.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Continue to beat, adding remaining ¼ cup sugar gradually, until very stiff. Fold gelatin mixture into egg whites. Fold whipped cream into the mixture.

Spoon mixture into parfait glasses. Top with additional whipped cream, chocolate curls, a cherry, or nuts. Refrigerate until served. Fills 6 to 8 parfait glasses.

(Instant coffee or another liqueur, such as Grand Marnier, may be substituted for the creme de cacao. Fruits may be layered in the parfait, if desired.)

A hearty soup is welcome year round, but fall events seem to inspire some cooks who have dodged the range during hot summer months.

A soup to galdden the hearts of sports fans after a weekend game takes little time to prepare. It is a Danish Pea Soup that is a total meal when served with crackers or homemade rolls and a salad. Such a soup brings back the custom of Saturday soup suppers to many families.

Since the pea soup refrigerates well it also makes a quick snack item for hungry persons of any age.

DANISH PEA SOUP

1 pound dried split green or yellow peas
6 smoked ham hocks
1 cup chopped celery leaves
1 large onion, chopped, or 2 leeks, trimmed and chopped
1 teaspoon crumbled thyme
2 tablespoons Angostura aromatic bitters
3 quarts water
3 potatoes, cooked and diced
Salt and pepper

In a large saucepan combine all ingredients except potatoes and salt and pepper. Simmer, covered, stirring occasionally until ham hocks are tender, about 1 to 1½ hours. Add potatoes and season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve with thick slices of buttered dark bread. If any soup is left and is reheated, add a little water to thin soup to the desired consistency. Makes 6 to servings.

Even best chocolate needs care

Ask any child what the best taste in the world is, and chances are he'll say chocolate. To always obtain the best flavor, texture and melt-in-your mouth properties of real chocolate, a quick review of selection, storage and cooking techniques can help.

Bitter or unsweetened chocolate, semi-sweet chocolate, sweet chocolate, milk chocolate and cocoa powder all contain chocolate liquid (formed during the crushing of the chocolate nibs) or chocolate liquid combined with other ingredients.

Bitter chocolate results when the pure chocolate liquid is cooled and molded into bars or squares. Bitter or unsweetened chocolate is most often used in cooking and baking when sugar and other sweetening ingredients are also used.

SWEET AND semi-sweet chocolates result when the chocolate liquid is blended with varying amounts of sweetening and added cocoa butter, the vegetable fat removed from the chocolate liquid during manufacture. After processing and cooling, sweet chocolate is usually molded into bars, while semi-sweet chocolate is formed into bars and pieces. Both chocolates may be eaten out-of-hand or used in cooking and baking.

Milk chocolate, best known as an eating chocolate, is formed by combining chocolate liquid with extra cocoa butter, milk or cream, sweetening and flavorings.

Cocoa powder is the general term used for the chocolate liquid left after the removal of most of the cocoa butter. Cocoa powder products include: breakfast cocoa, containing at least 22 per cent cocoa butter; medium and low fat cocoas, with 10 to 22 and less than 10 per cent cocoa butter, respectively; Dutch Process cocoa, which has been treated with an alkali to make it darker and richer; and ready-to-use cocoa, which contains sweetening and other flavorings.

To keep all types of chocolate at their best, proper storage remains a must. Always store chocolate in a cool (below 78 degrees), dry place. If stored at too high a temperature, chocolate can develop "bloom," a gray surface film caused by the cocoa butter softening and rising to the surface. Though safe to eat, chocolate with bloom may not be as creamy or attractive, and therefore is best used for cooking or baking.

SWEET AND semi-sweet chocolate also will develop bloom if stored where it's very moist. This bloom will appear as a rough gray layer formed by the solution and recrystallization of sugar. Chocolate with sugar bloom can still be used in cooking and baking.

Chocolate, when properly packaged and stored, has a long shelf life at room temperature. Wrap all chocolate well as it can absorb flavors and odors from other foods. Chocolate may be refrigerated for short periods of time, and frozen for as long as 3 to 4 months without change in flavor, appearance or texture.

To prevent lumping and loss of color, store cocoa in a tightly covered container at temperatures of 60 to 70 degrees and 50 to 60 relative humidity. If temperature or humidity should exceed these limits, flavor won't be affected, but the cocoa will look less appetizing.

Chocolate can be melted either dry (placed over hot water) or in liquid. Regardless of method, always use low heat to prevent scorching and cool gradually.

WHEN MELTING dry chocolate, utensils must be absolutely dry. Melt over hot but not boiling water, being sure there is no rising steam. One drop of moisture hitting the chocolate will cause it to stiffen and be impossible to work with. To rescue stiffened chocolate, stir in 1 to 2 tablespoons of vegetable shortening until the chocolate becomes fluid again.

If melting chocolate in a liquid, place it on a direct but low heat with at least one-quarter cup liquid, stirring constantly as chocolate melts. When adding liquids to melted chocolate, add at least 2 tablespoons at a time to prevent stiffening.

Casseroles

Mixes save time for cooks

All busy homemakers realize the value of both time and money. Meals which are nutritious but quick to prepare top their menu plans. While convenience foods may make meal preparation a lot faster, they often cost more than homemade products and lack important nutrients.

Mixes save time, and when the thrifty cook prepares her own, she saves money, too. A mix which is quick, economical and declicious is Casserole Sauce Mix. Nonfat dry milk, dry chicken bouillon, cornstarch, herbs and spices can be blended ahead of time and stored in a tightly covered canister or jar, always on hand for a variety of casseroles.

CASSEROLE SAUCE MIX

2 cups nonfat dry milk powder
¾ cup corn starch
¼ cup powdered chicken bouillon
4 teaspoons onion powder
1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves
½ teaspoon pepper

In medium bowl, stir together dry milk powder, cornstarch, bouillon, onion powder, thyme, basil and pepper. Store at room temperature in tightly covered jar. Makes 3 cups or enough for four casseroles.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

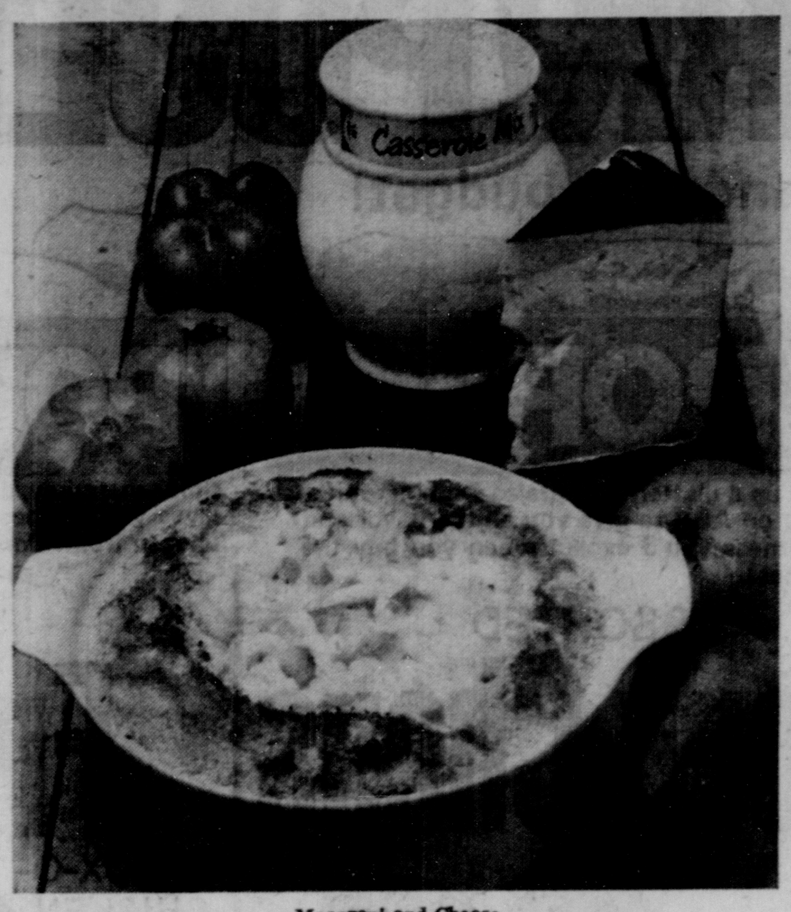
2 cups water
¾ cup Casserole Sauce Mix
2 tablespoons margarine
2½ cups grated cheddar cheese
4 cups cooked elbow macaroni
1 green pepper, chopped
1 tomato seeded and chopped
¼ cup dried bread crumbs

Grease 2 quart casserole. In medium saucepan gradually add water to casserole mix stirring until smooth; add margarine. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil and boils 1 minute. Remove from heat. Add 2 cups of the cheese stirring until cheese is melted. Add macaroni, tomato and green pepper. Toss together until well mixed. Pour into prepared casserole. Spoon bread crumbs around edge of casserole. Sprinkle center with remaining cheese. Bake in a 375 degree oven for 25 minutes or until casserole is hot, crumbs are browned, and cheese has melted. Serves 6.

CHICKEN AND GREEN BEAN CASSEROLE

3 cups water
¾ cup Casserole Sauce Mix
¼ cup margarine
2 cups cooked, cubed chicken
1 package (9 ounces) frozen Italian green beans, thawed
3 cups cooked rice
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Grease 2 quart casserole. In medium saucepan, gradually add water to casserole sauce mix stirring until smooth; add margarine. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil and boils one minute. In a large bowl, stir together sauce, chicken, green beans, rice and cheese. Turn into prepared casserole. Bake in 350 degree oven 25 minutes or until casserole is bubbly. Serves 6.



Macaroni and Cheese

Marmalade perks up curry dish

One way to stretch meat cuts such as a leg of lamb is to trim off leftover meat, cut into chunks, wrap these in waxed paper and place in a freezer bag. Freeze until you're ready to whip up a special dish such as a lamb curry.

Serve this curry, made different with the inclusion of orange marmalade, in patty shells or over a bed of rice. A fruit or green salad goes well with this quickie combination.

LAMB CURRY

1 package (10 ounces) frozen patty shells
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large onion, chopped
1 tart apple, peeled, cored and chopped
2 teaspoons curry powder
1/3 cup orange marmalade
¼ cup flour
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup (½ pint) light cream
3 cups diced leftover cooked lamb
Salt and pepper

In saucepan, heat butter and saute onion, apple and curry powder for 5 minutes. Stir in orange marmalade and flour. Gradually stir in chicken broth and cream. Stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Stir in lamb. Simmer for 5 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Spoon curried lamb into patty shells or onto a bed of rice. Serve with a green salad or a fruit salad. Makes 6 servings.

Diners never order peas to impress companions

by Jarvis Rice

Gregor Mendel, famous for Mendel's Law, used peas in his experiments on hereditary factors to prove his theories. The Austrian botanist grew so fond of the many pea plants he crossed that he proudly proclaimed, "These are my children!" Mendel might have been upset to learn that peas are at or near the bottom of the social scale in vegetables. At least, according to a well known criminal lawyer who offers this advice to young people seeking status: "When dining out, never order peas. Peas have no class. Order asparagus." Considered by many as an aristocrat among vegetables — and by some as the king of them all — asparagus comes from the royal family of the orchid and the lily. Hoity-toity ancestors, to be sure.

Olives are a fruit and not a vegetable, so maybe they shouldn't be competing with asparagus. But the peanut can 'cause it's a vegetable. A freaky one, we might add. The plant grows up, then shoots down into the ground and up again, thus growing up and down at the same time. No wonder we call them nuts!

Catherine de Medici, Italian noblewoman, taught the French how to use forks. That was in 1530. It must have been a good way to win friends and influence people because 15 years later she became Queen of France. Actually, forks had been used before in many countries but were discarded in France as being sacrilegious. The argument was: what's wrong with God's food that we can't touch it with our fingers? And no doubt the old cliche sprang up: fingers were made before forks. However, the Book of Etiquette of that era admonished: "Use only three fingers to pick up food. And never put food in the mouth with both hands at once."

Better nutrition seen on campus

by JEANNE LESEM

Two seemingly contradictory trends are growing in college and university dining halls: more fast food such as hamburgers and French fries, and better balanced meals.

The trend toward better nutrition actually started a few years ago when dramatic increases in food prices began, say food industry sources and an executive of the National Association of College and University Food Services.

The situation is "causing us to take a harder look at what we are doing (on campus)," said Kent Dohrman in a telephone interview. Dohrman is immediate past president of the Michigan-based food services organization and director of food and residential services for the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana, which feeds about 9,500 students per meal 20 meals a week in seven residential dining halls.

"SEVERAL CAMPUSES have contracted with fast food operators," he said. One state university, which Dohrman declined to identify, has developed its own McDonald's type operation.

He said the popularity of burgers and other fast foods has had a definite impact on student union dining services and even a minor impact on the board plan that for a flat fee provides a set number of meals per week for a student.

"Students are very receptive to fast foods. They're no different than they were eight or 10 years ago. They're still in a hurry to eat," he said.

Dohrman said some campus food services consequently offer a burger or hot beef sandwich line in their board plan at lunch or at night in their regular menu.

HE SEES A VERY positive response among students to better nutrition: to nutrition education, whether it is based on the Basic Four concept of dairy, meat, vegetables and fruit products or on the nutritional value of individual foods. He said students also show great concern about food waste. He expects that concern to spill over into the restaurant industry when the generation now in college enters the business and professional worlds.

"I think more and more restaurants are going to offer different size meals," Dohrman said. Dining halls already do so on some campuses, by popular request.

He sees no noticeable impact so far by students cooking, legally or illegally, in their rooms with portable electrical appliances.

"IT'S ILLEGAL, but everybody has hot plates, toaster ovens and electric frypans," said Rosey Mizner, who will be a sophomore this fall at the University of Buffalo in western New York State. "We're allowed to rent a 2-by-3-foot refrigerator to use in our rooms. We keep a few basic things in it."

Rosey, who described dining hall food as "cotton and air and grease," said:

"I'm used to pretty good food and some of my friends are nutritionists." Her mother heads the test kitchen at a New York City public relations firm that has many food accounts.

"A FRIEND GOT a wok for her birthday, and we've been making lots of Chinese vegetable dishes," she said.

Rosey said she uses some processed foods, such as dried kosher soup mix, but adds extra meat and vegetables.

Popular though they are burgers and french fries have not cut into the growing tastes for some foods that were taboo just a few years ago.

"Nine years ago we couldn't sell liver. Now it's popular with men and women. Spinach, too," said Joseph W. Bogart, vice prsident and general manager of Saga Food Service's educational division. The Kalamazoo-based company's customers include colleges and universities in 44 states.

"It's almost mandatory at dinner to ask for two vegetables and a green salad," Bogart said.

HE SAID MEXICAN foods are widely popular on campuses, and not just in the Southwest.

"The deli (delicatessen) concept has really taken hold — sandwiches made to order while the student watches. Campus feeding reflects the way the population in general eats away from home."

If that's the case, some meal habits are changing. Edward Engoron, marketing vice president of Mannings, a San Francisco-based contract feeder, said students these days are just as likely to eat burgers for breakfast and eggs for dinner, instead of vice versa. He also said a marketing survey showed men prefer salads more than women do and women eat more sweets than men.
